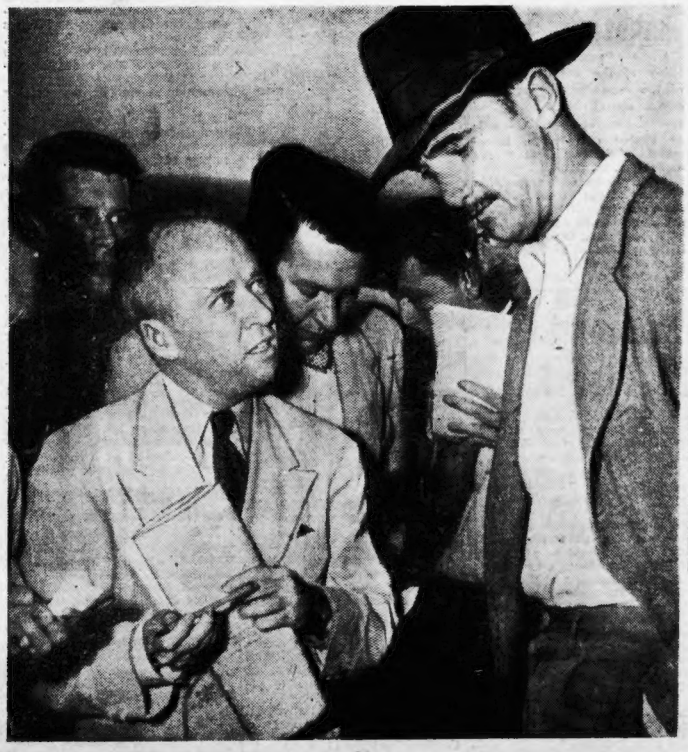
HUGHES BLASTS SEN. BREWSTER

Flies to Capital for Plane Hearing

STORIES ON PAGE 2



In Capital—Millionaire Howard Hughes is quizzed by newsmen today on his arrival in Washington where he is to testify before the Senate war investigating committee regarding wartime contracts. BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., AUG. 6, 1947

Hughes in Capital Ready to Testify

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Howard Hughes flew into Washington today and declared he is ready to repeat under oath "everything I have said" about the Senate investigation of his $40,000,000 wartime plane contracts. Hughes has charged publicly that the inquiry by the Senate war investigating committee was launched as part of an effort to coerce him into agreeing to a merger of Trans-World Airlines, which he controls, with Pan-American Airways. Chairman Ferguson (R.) of Michigan of the subcommittee conducting the inquiry agreed with Hughes' attorneys to postpone the Hollywood millionaire's appearance in the witness chair until an afternoon session.

Meanwhile, with the hearing room jammed with spectators, Ferguson had John Meyer, Hughes publicity man, back on the stand for further testimony on his accounts of lavishly entertaining public officials at the plane builder's expense.

Meyer read to the committee a long list of expenses he said he incurred in entertaining Col. James G. Hall, who succeeded Elliott Roosevelt as head of the Army Air Corps reconnaissance division.

The free-spending Meyer, who has already said he spent more than $5000 of Hughes' money entertaining Elliott Roosevelt and his friends, told the committee that on one occasion he spent $551.42 entertaining Hall.

Meyer said the expense for Hall covered five or six days in January, 1044, and included four to six people.

"Why were you paying these bills for Col. Hall and charging it up to aircraft?" Ferguson wanted to know.

"Here we go again," Meyer said. "Business."

KEPT ACCOUNTS LOOSELY

He has contended time and again in his appearances, starting last Friday, that he entertained freely, and that he wa sinstructed by Hughes to charge such entertainment to Hughes Aireraft.

He reiterated again today that he kept his accounts "loosely."

Meyer read into the record a long list of smaller sums he said he spent on Hall in the same period.

Ferguso nasked how Meyer learned that Hall had taken over from Roosevelt. Meyer said possibly through the Hughes company.

"Did you spend any money on Hall prior to this time?" Ferguasked.

"I don't think so," Meyer replied.

He added that the entertainment occurred in Los Angeles.

INSPECTION TOUR

Ferguson asked how Hall happened to be in Los Angeles.

"He obviously was there to look over our plant," Meyer said.

One of the Hughes contracts was a $22,000,000 one for reconnaissance planes.

Ferguson read items of $48.65, $10 and $5 for dinner and tips at the Beachcomers Hotel, and $12 for lunch at Romanoff's.

Ferguson said it was not clear whether the total bill covered entertainment for Hall alone, and Meyer agreed that "it definitely is not clear."

Tolling Bells Recall Hiroshima A-Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Aug. 6 (AP)—Just two years ago warfare's first atomic bomb descended here and a large part of Hiroshima vanished in a blinding flash of destruction. Today at 8:14 a. m., the hour when the bomb exploded, the bells tolled. The people stood in silent prayer for one minute, then went again about their affairs.

That was the only official notice taken in Hiroshima of the explosion that left 92,000 of its citizens dead or missing.

But the city officials were busy with plans to make Hiroshima a shrine for the world's hopes of peace.

At their request, Gen. MacArthur in Tokyo released a statement. He said:

"War's destructiveness will progress until the means are at hand to exterminate the human race."

"This is the lesson of Hiroshima. God Grant that it be not ignored."

It was also announced that Australian engineers had helped draft a plan for a modern Hiroshima, with a peace memorial at the spot over which the atomic bomb let go.

Hiroshima ha sa long way to go. Although 20,000 temporary shelters have sprung up, the actual permanent rebuilding of the city has not yet begun.

That, said its mayor, was one reason for observing the day which can never be forgotten by those who lived through it.

Hiroshima hopes to make of itself a symbol of the futility of war forever.

Hiroshima should know.

HIROSHIMA DAY

On the second anniversary today of the atomic bombing of the Japanese city of Hiroshima, church bells rang and several congregations in Greater Boston observed a three-minute period of silent prayer at 9:15 a. m.

Observances under direction of the Boston branch of the Emergency World People's Congress were held in Dorchester, Quincy, Salem, Natick, Framingham, Concord and Nahant as part of a worldwide campaign for peace.

President To Visit Rio

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—President Truman today accepted an invitation to visit Brazil in late August or September.

"The President sincerely appreciated the cordial invitation recently extended to him by His Excellency, President Gaspar Dutra of Brazil, to make a visit to that country, and expressed the hope that it would be possible at an early date for him to accept," said a formal White House announcement released simultaneously here and in Rio De Janeiro.

President Truman is now most happy to confirm his acceptance and the trip is being scheduled to take place during the latter part of August or the early days of September.

"The President plans to proceed to Rio De Janeiro by air for a three-day visit and to return on the USS Missouri."

Hughes Lashes Brewster Probe As Aid to Rival

By HOWARD HUGHES

Copyright, 1947, By Los Angeles Examiner

Yes, this investigation of my aircraft contracts and the star-studded hearing which Sen. Brewster (R.) of Maine, is staging constitute a great service to Mr. Juan Trippe and his Pan American Airways. I understand that Pan American has two men at the hearing every day—just to make sure Brewster does a good job.

But they don't have to worry, Sen. Brewster has been carrying the ball for Mr. Trippe in fine shape.

In the first play, which was a magnificent touchdown effort, Brewster threatened this investigation and then offered to call it off if I would agree to Mr. Trippe's pet scheme—a merger between his Pan American Airways and my smaller company, TWA (Trans World Airline).

When I finally refused to knuckle under on this deal, the second investigation was held in a state of uncertainty for a while. Then apparently a second choice or next-best strategy was put into operation.

This play might be called a try for a field goal, since it can only produce three points—or about half of what Trippe wanted originally.

FORECASTS STRATEGY

It appears that the present strategy is as follows:

Brewster is going ahead and pushing the investigation, discrediting me before the public and ruining my reputation to a point where it may be very difficult for me to continue in business.

You can well imagine that, after this little episode, many people will be afraid to sit down at a table with me for fear of becoming involved in a front page newspaper scandal. I have already encountered a few fair-weather friends who won't even talk to me on the telephone.

If Brewster is successful, my bankers will quietly deposit me in the gutter.

For instance, I have been trying to obtain an RFC loan for my company, TWA.

The RFC is a government agency. And after Brewster gets through administering this mud bath to me, the chances are that the RFC won't touch me with a 10-foot pole.

No doubt Trippe and Brewster also fervently hope that my reputation will be so smeared that the CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board) will take away some of the Transatlantic airline routes now held by my company, TWA, and give them to Juan Trippe's Pan American Airways.

COVETS AIR ROUTES

Juan Trippe has had his eye on a couple of these routes for a long time. For over two years, he has been trying desperately to persuade the CAB to let Pan American into Paris and Rome.

Well, I notice that Sen. Brewster has finally screwed up his courage and now denies that he proposed the TWA-Pan American merger deal to me during that luncheon in his suite at the Mayflower Hotel.

But there is one thing the good senator can't deny (even with the help of the Bible) and that is the trip that Trippe made.

Yes, Sen. Brewster, that little excursion speaks for itself.

You certainly don't think anyone will believe that such an important man as Juan Trippe would fly 2500 miles and spend two days under wraps in secret conference with me at Palm Springs and then fly 2500 miles back, all just for a game of pinochle!

And, Senator, I've got an awful lot of figures and memoranda

Rail Law Guards Cows, Not Children

The State Legislature should clear up an ambiguity in the law which requires railroads to erect fences and barriers along rights of way to protect cattle, but does not specifically afford the same protection to humans.

Special Justice Samuel D. Eisenstadt of Roxbury court made this recommendation in an inquest report on the death of James R. Fullerton, 7, of Clifton st., killed last March by a locomotive on the New Haven railroad overpass at Dudley st.

Judge Eisenstadt, exonerating the railroad of negligence, said the tracks are accessible by open, unobstructed stairways, providing a dangerous condition in the nature of an attractive nuisance.

3 More Palestine Jews Arrested

JERUSALEM, Aug. 6 (AP)—Three more Jews were taken into custody today as the British continued their roundup of Jewish leaders whom the government says have "shown sympathy for the policy of violence" or have "been in contact with the underground."

In Jerusalem, a sharp explosion shattered the early morning quiet of a dusk to dawn curfew area, but ther were no casualties, the blast was apparently caused by a grenade tossed at a British post near the Jewish agency building.

Anti-Jewish Rioter Sentenced in England

ECCLES, England, Aug. 6 (AP)—Magistrate J. H. Chapman today sentenced Jack Piggott, 38, to six months in prison for damaging a shop window in a demonstration against Jews here Monday night and commented:

"We connot find any excuse for these anti-Jewish demonstrations. They are both un-British and unpatriotic."

Police testified Piggott was one of a throng of 700 who engaged in window smashing and other vandalism which caused damage estimated at $4,600. Several others arrested were fined.

State Tax Probers Stampede Bookies

Bookies in Massachusetts were reported on the run today as the State revealed plans to prosecute them on income tax evasion charges and Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan urged that they be jailed instead of fined.

First move in what may prove the bet-taker's biggest headache in years was the announcement in Holyoke that the office of Tax Comr. Henry F. Long has been conducting a quiet investigation for two months in the Connecticut Valley, apparently in co-operation with State Police and federal tax sleuths.

This statement came from J. Paul Canty, chief of the state income tax division, who set the total number of bookies in business in the Bay State at 10,000.

Canty held a hearing at Holyoke City Hall at which he announced:

"Bookies in Holyoke and nearby cities can be expected to be called in within 30 days to make good their back income tax or the state will move in on the gamblers."

U. S. IN ON PROBE

Asked if the investigation now completed was carried out with the aid of other enforcement groups, he commented:

"The federal tax men and the state police are not standing idly by."

Canty asserted:

"Our two month probe has given first-hand information that there is very close co-operation between the bookies in Holyoke, Springfield, Westfield, Chicopee and Northampton."

He said Comr. Long became interested two months ago when Probation Officer Thomas F. Rohan of Holyoke charged that gambling and vice constituted a $2,000,000 a year business flourishing under municipal protection.

While Dist. Atty Charles R. Alberti threatened a state police raid on Holyoke if gambling and vice were not cleaned up, no raid occurred following Comr. Long's order for an undercover drive on the gamblers' pocketbooks, it was pointed out.

Canty warned:

"A thorough investigation has been made quietly by state tax experts and we are now in possession of information that we never had before. The so-called Big Four bookies in Holyoke are standing on thin ice today insofar as Comr. Long is concerned about paying back taxes."

JAIL TERMS URGED

Locally, Police Comr. Sullivan called for jail sentences to "put the bookies out of business in Boston." He declared:

"Fines mean nothing. There is so much money in back of them that there is no question but that the big interests behind the rackets will pay off the fines.

"Look up the records. Time after time, bookies are arrested, found guilty and fined. Almost immediately they are out on the street again. Only in rare instances are jail sentences imposed."

Sullivan said a difficult enforcement problem is raised by legalizing gambling at a track but making it illegal across the street.

He defended the Boston police drive on bookies by pointing to "the number of bookies who have left the city and are now operating outside the community."

Sullivan contended an estimate that 1000 bookies are operating in the city is too high.

MISSES POINT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (INS)—A crap shooter's plea that he was only waiting for his girl to bring him a glass of water failed to impress Municipal Judge McMahon.

Judge McMahon fined William F. Smith, 35, $5 for shooting dice in a gutter and then quipped:

"The court thinks you failed to make your point."

Uncle Arraigned in Slaying As Confession Is Checked

FALL RIVER, Aug. 6—While Charles A. McGarty, 25, was being led into a district court today to be arraigned on a murder charge, detectives and pathologists checked more closely his alleged statement that he killed his 8-year-old niece because of a feud with her father.

Meanwhile, sharp criticism was levelled at the State Parole Board for releasing McGarty from Concord Reformatory after he served but 11 months of three concurrent five-year sentences for a holdup, burglary and larceny.

McGarty pleaded innocent in the brutal slaying and was held without bail for a further hearing Wednesday. Police guards patrolled the courthouse to keep crowds of curious away.

Dr. Alan R. Moritz, State Police pathologist, today examined the internal organs of the victim, Theresa LeFleur of Quarry st., for evidence of a criminal attack. Clothing worn by her alleged slayer was also seized for examination.

Although the youth described in detail how he killed his niece, according to police, Dr. Thomas E. Boylan refused to rule on the cause of death immediately. He performed an autopsy with Dr. Moritz and it was then decided to subject the internal organs to closer examination.

ONE OF 12 CHILDREN

McGarty, who lives in County st., is one of 12 children. His sister, Mrs. Leo LaFleur, is the mother of the slain girl. There are five other LaFleur children.

When first arrested, the youth allegedly protested tearfully to his sister:

"Honest, sis, I wouldn't do a thing like this. You know it. I love all your children, every one of them. I wouldn't harm a hair on any of their heads."

Later, police said he broke down under grilling and asserted, "Yes, I did it. I had a reason." He then allegedly explained that the victim's father had upbraided him for taking another of the children into a drinking place and he decided to kill one of the La Fleur children in retaliation.

McGarty's release from Concord last May followed a special interview before the parole board, at which his mother pleaded that he was "a good boy, who has always supported me."

THERESA LaFLEUR, 8
Uncle Held in Her Slaying

Frederick J. Bradlee, a member of the board, said the release was recommended by Inspector Ralph J. Hall of the Fall River police and the late Supt. Michael J. Dee of the reformatory.

ACTED FOR MOTHER

Asst. Dist. Atty. J. Edward Lajoie commended: "If he had served the minimum sentence he should have served he would still be in Concord Reformatory and this thing could not have happened." McGarty was freed last May and otherwise would have been held at least until November.

Bradlee added that Inspector Hall had written Supt. Dee stating he had been asked by McGarty's mother to intercede, as the youth was needed at home to help support the family and that the inspector felt the case was worth consideration by the board.

Bradlee explained the parole board "put a good deal of stock in that type of letter."

Meanwhile, the heart-broken mother of the accused youth, who is one of 12 children, blamed drink for the tragedy involving her son.

"I can't understand how he could do this to the little daughter of his own sister, Veronica," the mother moaned during an interview in which she twice fainted. "What can I do? There is nothing I can do now."

N. H. Woman Loses Hand In Dynamite Cap Blast

EPPING, N. H., Aug. 6 (AP)—An explosion of dynamite caps which Mrs. Evangeline Rapetti, 52, found in a drawer in her home yesterday cost her loss of the left hand, according to Deputy Sheriff Everett E. Judkins.

Not knowing what the caps were, Mrs. Rapetti probed them with a wire, setting off the explosion. She was taken to Exeter Hospital where the hand was amputated.

Trap Roxbury Girl Fugitive In Swank Hotel

Brought back from Atlantic City by an alert policewoman who was there on other duties, Marion Bernard, 18, Island st., Roxbury, was arraigned in Roxbury district court today on charges of stealing from the mailbox of her own home three money orders and a Treasury check belonging to her aunt.

Judge Samuel Eisenstadt held the girl without bail when it was revealed she had been convicted in municipal court July 1 of stealing $75 in clothing from a Boston department store. The case was continued when Inspectors Leo Devlin and Arthur O'Shea asked time to question a 17-year-old Medford girl suspected of complicity in the larceny of the money orders.

The municipal court conviction disclosed the Bernard girl had used the assumed name of Doris DiPaolo, Fuller st., Dorchester. Given a suspended reformatory sentence, the girl was under $600 bail supplied by her mother on the money order larcenies.

Police said the girl disappeared from the Roxbury probation office as the mother was handing over the bail money.

In the company of the Medford girl, she allegedly went to New York, returned, and then went to Atlantic City with a teen-age girl from Magazine st., Roxbury, and another young girl.

At Atlantic City Miss Marie Wall, Roxbury police woman, discovered the Bernard girl was unable to meet her bill in an exclusive hotel

Loan Almost Gone, Attlee Says U. S. To Talk It Over

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced today the United States had agreed to two-power discussions looking toward a relaxation of the U. S.-British loan agreement.

The Labor government leader told the House of Commons the agreement reached when the United States advanced credits of $3,750,000,000 was aggravating the British economic crisis.

He said the loan, originally intended to last until 1950, would be exhausted by the end of this year, but denied the Labor administration had "frittered away" the loan, as Winston Churchill charged in an address Monday.

"That is not true," Attlee said, opening a lengthy speech in which he was expected to give the government's plans for meeting its growing dollar shortage and tell Britons of the new privations awaiting them.

Oliver Stanley, a Conservative, opened the debate, accusing the government of "encouraging inflation" and "distorting our economy." Stanley said the Labor administration could have prevented the swift exhausting of the U. S. loan.

Attlee replied:

"I would agree it might have been better if we had had a greater concentration of effort. Maybe we have tried to do too much in a short time."

"It may well be that we have relaxed controls too soon. There has been a failure on the part of some workers to realize that shorter hours and higher wages must be matched by greater effort.

"It is well to bear in mind that very great efforts have been made by the people of this country. An immense amount of reconstruction has been accomplished."

Attlee stressed what he called a "great increase" in production and exports. He commented that, by the end of last year, British sales overseas were 11 per cent greater than in 1938.

The extent to which the government is preparing to go was indicated yesterday in the introduction of a bill to assure it full emergency poyers over industry, commerce and agriculture. The bill would continue similar wartime controls to 1950.

REP. LEO ALLEN, ILL., JAS. H. MAYCOCK, PRES. OF MASS. DENTAL SOCIETY AND REP. JOS. MARTIN OF ATTLEBORO
Confer Before House Speaker Addresses Dentists' Convention

Martin Pledges All-Out Red Drive

Pledging the present Congress to purge the national government of all Communists, Fascists and agitators, House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., warned delegates from 54 nations attending the 10th International Dental Congress here that the purge was necessary to preserve the American way of life.

Urging the fullest co-operation by all races, creeds and parties, Martin told the dental representatives that if htis nation's living standards, working conditions and social traditions were destroyed, all would lose.

He warned also that while the United States wanted to help other nations help themselves, "we cannot afford a perpetual, gigantic world WPA."

Referring to the determination of Congress to east out the Red menace, Martin declared:

"I care not by what name you call them, whether Communists, Fascists or just plain agitators, they menace our way of life and they must be defeated and cast out.

"The Constitution must stand. The Bill of Rights must endure. Our American way of life must be perpetuated. Nobody is going to stop us from performing that patriotic duty."

Martin met criticism of Congressional trips abroad with the defense that "Congressmen who go abroad on inspection trips are not on 'joyful junkets.'

"If anybody believes a five or six weeks' inspection trip to any part of Europe, or the Far East, with the bad water, worse food, rubble, desolation and desperate peoples constitutes a joyful junket he ought to try it once."

He scored the Democratic administration of the past 14 years as having been guilty of "strange acrobatics" concerning the expulsion of Communists in high places from the federal government.

"The practice has become the rule for the bureaus and departments to conceal, or, by the device of half truths, to mislead the Congress. A great deal of this was due to deliberate effort to change our real form of government."

While aiding needy peoples abroad we must consider our wants at home, he said.

"We must be careful that we do not drain ourselves of goods to the point where sky high prices produce disaster in our own country."

Gas Chamber With Joey 'Heaven,' Says Trap Bride

Displaying no emotion and convinced that they will be put to death for the "love trap" murder of their benefactor, Joseph L. Hardy, Jr., 24, and his bride, Lois, 22, of Kittery, Me., were due to be arraigned on a murder charge today in Truckee, Cal.

MRS. JOSEPH L. HARDY
Faces Murder Charges Today

Just one week after they admittedly killed James W. McLain, 48, of Burbank, Cal., after he gave them a ride on the road and paid for thir lodgings, the couple faced Justice of the Peace R. N. Little in the first step of what California authorities promised will be a quick trial.

Joseph L. Hardy

Hardy boasted to reporters:

"Dad always said I would die by hanging, but he was wrong. In California they put you in the gas chamber."

His bride of a week assured newsmen:

"It would be heavenly to die in the gas chamber with Joey."

Hardy then said in a flat voice from his cell in the Truckee jail:

"I know this is the end. I know what's going to happen to me, but I don't care."

SHOWS LETTER TO MOM

He showed reporters a letter he had just written his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hardy of Manson rd., North Kittery. It read:

"Mom, don't let anyone tell you it takes guts to kill a man. I felt no more conscience when I shot him than I would killing a wild rabbit, and it has never bothered me since.

"Well, so long, Mom. I guess you'll never miss me much, but at least think of me occasionally."

Hardy's letter home, and three postcards he sent his mother describing his "vacation" on a nationwide crime jaunt, were the only evidence of sentiment shown by either of the couple, described as the "hardest boiled characters ever jailed in Las Vegas, Nev."

They were picked up in Las Vegas an hour after their marriage and the day after the McLain murder when Hardy fell asleep and their car crashed into a pole.

The car was registered to McLain and the couple was jailed on suspicion of theft of the late model vehicle.

GIRL BROKE DOWN

Police had only their suspicions to go on until Sunday morning, when the girl broke down during a religious service and shouted that she wanted to confess her sins.

How the girl underwent a change of heart and the pair subsequently confessed the brutal murder of McLain, shot through the head in Hirschdale, Cal., by Hardy while Lois held him in a bogus embrace, was told by Rev. R. Craig Willoughby, non-denominational minister for the Las Vegas jail.

"Last Sunday afternoon," he said, "we held our usual services at the jail. Only women prisoners are allowed in the room where we hold services. Mrs. Hardy was one of several present. The men could listen to the service through the cell doors.

"I had spoken on what God had done for me and for other sinners. We sang three hymns, and after I had asked if there was anyone present who wanted to accept the Lord, Mrs. Hardy came forward with three other women.

CONFESSION A MIRACLE

"When they told their story to authorities, Hardy asked me to pray for him. I placed my hands on his head, and prayed. Then I told him to pray.

"After they signed the confession, both of them seemed to be very much relieved. The officers who were unable to get anything out of them for two days were quite surprised when they agreed to talk.

"But I wasn't. It was a miracle of grace.

19 Die, Year's Hottest Spell Moving East

By the Associated Press

The worst heat wave of the year, still firmly anchored over most of the nation, had caused at least 19 deaths today as it spread into the eastern states.

A finger of cold air from Canada had brought substantial relief and some scattered showers to the Dakotas and Minnesota, but it was almost absorbed in Nebraska and western Iowa, where the weather bureau said the temperature drop was only moderate.

There was nothing in sight, the Bureau said, to dislodge the hot air from the Mississippi Valley, south plains and Great Lakes regions generally within the next 24 hours, although the wind shift in Nebraska and western Iowa was moving slowly eastward with relief promised for parts of other north central states tonight and Thursday.

Both the eastern and Rocky Mountain states would be warmer today, forecasters said.

No rain of consequence was in immediate prospect for most of the dry Midwest topsoil, now generally depleted of moisture by three days of temperatures ranging from the high 90's to well above 100 degrees. Pastures were reported drying up and hay crops reduced. Corn has fired in at least a few areas.

Yuma, Ariz., was the hottest spot of the nation yesterday with a high reading of 111. Fresno, Cal., and Advance, Mo., reported 107 degrees.

Navy Offers Petty Officer Ratings to Veterans

Navy veterans discharged after Aug. 15, 1945, who held ratings in certain groups where vacancies now exist, may re-enlist as petty officers with only a slight reduction in grade, it was announced today. Previously, Navy men could not re-enlist as petty officers if they were separated from service more than 90 days.

Groups affected include fire controlmen, radiomen, ship-fitters and yeomen, also such aviation ratings as electricians, instrument men, machinists, metalsmiths, parachute riggers and hydraulic men.

VFW Asks Ban On Textbook As Pro-Red

By DAN MARKEL
Boston American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Charges that "Building Citizenship," social science textbook in wide use in the nation's schools, is irreligious, un-American and pro-Communist were hurled here by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In Pittsburgh, the author, Ray Osgood Hughes, ex-president of the National Council of Social Studies, branded the charges "idiotic and absurd."

Hughes declared the book has been approved by many educators since its first publication in 1933 and that the latest of its annual revisions recently received the indorsement of a board of school authorities.

Approximately 50,000 copies have been sold each year since publication, he asserted. It has been used in ninth-grade social studies in which approximately 6000 boys and girls here participate.

Adopting a detailed report by its own un-American activities committee, the council instructed Dept. Com. Albert E. Armstrong to demand that the Washington Board of Education withdraw the book.

The council also directed that a permanent committee be appointed to screen all textbooks used in the Capitol's public schools. National VFW headquarters has proposed this plan to posts and departments throughout the country.

1600 Face Somerville Ford Plant Layoff

Approvimately 1300 workers at the Ford Motor Co. plant in Somerville will be laid off for an indefinite period within a few days, and most of the 300 office employes may follow them shortly, a company spokesman disclosed today.

The impending layoff is necessary, it was said, because of a shortage caused by a strike of 7000 workers of the Murray Corp. of America, suppliers of bodies and parts to Ford and other auto firms, over penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Murder Trial Film Has Premiere Here

A film drama in which the young hero kills not so much for hatred as for love opens today at the RKO Memorial Theater here, with the first showing of "The Long Night," a brilliant study of murder and defiant loyalty.

At the dramatic climax of the film, the hero faces a charge of first degree murder, and with a vast audience of spectators and radio listeners as jury, a mock trial for this youth will be held Wednesday evening, Aug. 13, at Symphony Hall.

Those who attend the trial, and who have first seen the picture, will be best qualified as jurors to give a just decision, being familiar with the tragic problems which have driven this young man to a murder which he seeks desperately to avoid. The role of the hero will be played in the trial by Guy Madison, replacing Henry Fonda in the film version.

The ill-fated heroine, a witness at the mock trial, will be played by Jacqueline White, substituting for Barbara Bel Geddes in the picture. Ann Dvorak will play in person the colorful role of night club entertainer which she creates in the film.

The mock trial will be broadcast from the stage of Symphony Hall between 8 and 9 p. m. over the Yankee Network, with the listening audience joining with the spectators as jurors. Tickets will go on sale during the week at Symphony Hall, priced from $3 to $1, and all proceeds will be donated to the Children's Hospital Fund.

Boston's noted criminal lawyer, Atty. Herbert Callahan, will serve as counsel for the defense, and Judge Thomas J. Courtney of Chicago, who as state's attorney rounded up the lethal Capone gang and assisted in the capture of the killer John Dillinger, will be prosecutor. The name of the presiding justice will be announced later.

"The Long Night" is produced by Robert and Raymond Hakim and directed by Anatol Litvak.

Sea of Dead Fish Plagues Gulf Shore

CLEARWATER, Fla., Aug. 6 (AP)—The huge mass of dead fish killed by the "red tide" remained off shore today still threatening to deluge the gulf's shoreline with smelly victims of the plague which has killed millions of fish.

The Pinellas County health department prepared to haul away and destroy piles of fish carcasses washed ashore south of here.

Dr. Franklin E. Campbell, Pinellas County health director, reported yesterday an obnoxious gas was rising from the minute organisms—dinoflagellate—which has caused the deaths of the tons of fish.

Cole in New Try For Mill Peace

Gen. Charles H. Cole, chairman of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, went to Fall River today in a second attempt to induce textile mill and union officials to end the strike of 1400 key workers of three independent unions.

Hundreds of employes in the city's 21 cotton mills have already been laid off, as the paralyzing effects of the strike of loom fixers, knot tiers and slasher tenders continued to slow down the industry.

It was predicted that all the mills would be virtually at a standstill by the end fo the week, with 14,000 non-skilled workers idle.

Meanwhile, a strike of CIO textile workers at Holyoke and the Amoskeag-Lawrence Mill at Manchester, N. H., was keeping those plants closed, with 650 employes idled.

HOSIERY (212) MAIN BASEMENT

Dentists Hear Of Plastics, Value of Diets

Only a keen eye will be able to distinguish between natural teeth and those on plastic detntures of the future, Dr. Theodore A. Bodine, Akron, O., predicted today before the 88th annual meeting of the American Dental Ass'n.

On the third day of the five-day meeting, members of the association also heard advanced the theory that proper diet mmediately before and after a tooth extraction will greatly lessen post-operative pain.

Other papers read by eminent dentists indicated that an individual's physique and temperament have a bearing on the position of the teeth and that undetected or untreated childhood diseases cause the lose of more adult teeth than decay.

Describing the new technique for making false teeth, Dr. Bodine said each tooth is matched to the natural one it replaces before it is fastened to the base individually. Any practicing dentist can fashion them, he said.

Dr. Edward J. Ryan, Evanston, Ill., said powerfully built persons are likely to have protruding lowers. The former are often associated with "the man of action and strong will," he added. The latter may be a stigma of masculine weakness in the public eye.

Protruding upper teeth, he said, are rare among movie heroes, but common among their female counterparts. In women, protruding uppers are a feature of allure.

For 24 hours before dental surgery and 48 hours after it, said Dr. eLonard S. Morvay, Newark, N. J., the diet should consist of citrus fruits and juices, leafy green vegetables, tomatoes and plenty of milk. That will prevent "dry socket," a condition where a satisfactory blood clot has not formed after extraction, and so lessen pain.

Dr. B. O. A. Thomas, Seattle, Wash., said one man in five of military age is forced to wear dentures because childhood diseases went undetected or untreated. He stressed the necessity of preventive dentistry among the young.

Hughes Probe

charged to Hughes aircraft.

Meyer—Right.

Ferguson—Whom was it for if it wasn't for Hall?

Meyer—I can't remember. As I have said before, I kept accounts loosely and (recorded) the dates and the money to the best of my knowledge.

Ferguson—I see some entertainment down at the bottom here for girls. Why was that charged to Hughes aircraft?

ANXIOUS TO TESTIFY

Hughes arrived here in his private plan and went directly to a hotel.

When the committee met at 9:20 a. m., Ferguson called Thomas Slack, Hughes' attorney, to the stand and asked "if Mr. Hughes is here?"

"He is here and ready and anxious to testify before the committee whenever it suits the pleasure of the committee," Slack replied.

Slack then explained that Hughes was at a hotel and would remain there until shortly before the committe was ready to hear him.

But when on his arrival, Hughes was asked if he would decline to testify unless allowed to cross examine and call his own witnesses, he refused to to commit himself.

Asked if he cared to say anything about hotel bills his press agent, John Meyer, said he paid for Elliott Roosevelt, Hughes said:

"I know nothing about it."

Hughes appeared tired from the long trip, broken only by a stop early this morning at Tulsa, Okla.

He said he piloted the two-engine B-23 converted bomber all the way, and the trip was "O.K."

QUESTIONED ABOUT PLANE

He wore a tan sport coat, light gray trousers and a battered brown felt hat pulled down over his eyes. His soiled white shirt was open at the collar.

Asked about the progress of the photo reconnaissance plane for which he has a contract with the Army, Hughes said the plane now is undergoing flying tests and did not discuss it further.

Hughes had avoided a committee invitation—in the form of a subpoena—to appear earlier. But all preparations for his appearance today, including plans for a direct broadcast of his testimony, were made hours in advance.

In recalling Meyer, it was noted that Elliott Roosevelt yesterday had declared that Meyer's accounts of having always picked up the checks for a transcontinental round of entertaining Roosevelt, then an Air Forces colonel, were "completely ridiculous."

Roosevelt contended that he was not present on many of the occasions when Meyer listed him as the recipient of Hughes' company hospitality.

Ferguson said that Meyer also will be asked to identify expense vouchers in which he wrote the names of other prominent persons.

Ferguson told reporters these include Interior Sec. Krug, supposed to have been entertained by Meyer when Krug was chairman of the War Production Board. Krug previously has said he was not present at some of the affairs where Meyer put him down as a guest.

"Secretary Krug will be given the opportunity to come in here and testify if he desires, just as Gen. Roosevelt was accorded that opportunity."

The committee chairman listed Maj. Gen. B. E. Meyers, formerly assistant chief of the Air Corps Material and Supplies Division, as another possible witness today.

The committee has received sworn testimony in closed sessions from Meyer that he spent a total of $798.70 on Meyers, another officer and their wives in April, 1944, at about the time the photo-reconnaissance plane contract was being negotiated finally with Hughes.

THANKS COMMITTEE

Roosevelt ended a two-day stay on the stand yesterday by publicly thanking the committee for the "very fair treatment" he said he had received at the hands of both Republican and Democratic members.

Previously he had said he regarded his involvement in the inquiry as an effort to "smear" the name of his father.

He had voiced contentions about "politics" in the investigation and asserted that "leaks" had caused the public to believe he was guilty of "conduct unbecoming an officer" even before he "had a chance to prove how ridiculous these charges were."

Sen. Pepper (D.) of Florida chimed in with:

"I hope we will be able to eradicate the impression in the public's mind that this is a Republican investigating committee out to investigate the Democrats."

Ferguson said the committee will investigate any case brought to its attention by the minority members, but Pepper said the "minority has not been consulted as to what is under investigation." Ferguson and William P. Rogers, committee counsel, denied this.

Roosevelt testified he had made it perfectly plain to all concerned, that while he recommended that the Air Corps buy Hughes' F-11 photo-reconnaissance plane he considered Hughes' efforts to build the big flying boat as not in the best interests of the war effort.

Roosevelt quoted Robert Lovett, then assistant secretary of war for air, as having said the flying boat should not have been started, but added that Hughes was very eager to continue it.

The witness said he told Hughes that all of his plant facilities ought to be directed toward making the F-11 plane.

SRO AT HEARING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (INS)—An audible sigh passed through the audience in the Senate hearing room today when spectators learned the fabulous Howard Hughes would not appear this morning. Among those disappointed were 110 high school youths brought to Washington by the American Legion to study operations of the government.

Although there were an estimated 500 in the marble-lined hearing room, the halls of the Senate office building were jammed with persons who still had hopes of getting in.

showing the basis of the proposed merger.

Also, don't forget that Mr Dietrich of my company had further conferences with Mr. Trippe in New York.

PROBE DELAY ASKED

And while they were negotiating in New York, Mr. Trippe contacted you and asked you to hold up this investigation of my airplane contracts, and he also asked you to try and delay the hearing on the community airline bill because he thought he was going to be able to make a deal with me.

Don't you remember? Trippe didn't want you to go ahead with the hearing on the community airline bill and probably fail. He wanted you to wait until he completed the merger, so as to have TWA's support.

How are you going to explain all that?

It must be pretty well known that Juan Trippe had been trying to get his meat-hooks into my company, TWA, for a long, long time, either by a merger or a purchase.

I never would even discuss it with him! And it must be generally known in the aviation industry that I was opposed to it.

Then you and Trippe threw the threat of this investigation at me.

You knew there was no basis for this investigation — that nobody had done anything criminal. But you also knew it could be twisted and slanted so as to give me a lot of bad publicity.

USED HEARING THREAT

And that made it a powerful weapon, because it was common knowledge that I was jealous of my reputation which I had achieved through hard work and risking my life on several occasions.

Now surely, Senator, you don't think anyone will believe that I would suddenly give in and start talking to you and Juan Trippe about a merger deal that I didn't like, while you were holding a sword over my head in the form of this threatened investigation, unless you had promised to call off the investigation if I would play ball.

At least you don't think anyone in the aviation industry will believe it, do you?

And Senator, one little piece of advice—don't try to deny the trip that Trippe made, because the log book of his own airplane will prove that Kilroy was there.

Stirring Story On 'Clocker Bill'

Dorchester's Bill Smith, affectionately known for many years as "The Clocker" among his Boston Evening American Associates, talways preferred to lose by a nose on a 20-1 shot, than win easily on an odds-on-favorite horse. But finally, when he wanted it most, he put a good one over.

A heartwarming story of "Clocker Bill," whose life was devoted to his mother and then to racing, is told by Dan Parker in "The Clocker's Last Selection," which will appear in next Sunday's American Weekly, issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Another interesting American Weekly feature for next Sunday is "The Weaker Sex—Oh, Yeah?" which presents considerable proof that so-called delicate womanhood is amazingly hardy—and getting hardier all the time.

Marblehead Race Party

A CONGENIAL CROWD of society's young Barnacle Bills and belles battened down the hatches and came ashore last night for for one of the numerous delightful parties celebrating race week at Marblehead. It was a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. John O'Day for friends of their debutante daughter Ann, and preceded the formal race week dance at Corinthian Yacht Club.

Guests included Jane Cox and Janet Gutterson of Cohasset. Ann's house guests. Jane and Janet are sailing the latter's boat, "Janet III," in the international 110 class. Ann's sisters and their husbands and babies are also race week guests at the O'Days' lovely place at Peaches Point, Mr. and Mrs Jansen Noyes, Jr. (Dorothy O'Day) of Darien, Ct., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mulcahy Jr. (Mary O'Day) of Brookline.

Other young people joining the fun at Ann's party were Gail Falvey on whose 110 "We Three" Ann is crew; Cordelia MacPherson who entertained many of the same crowd at a midnight supper on her Dad's yacht "Escapade" after the North Shore Players' opening Monday; Peggy Connolly, Sheila and Patricia Pinkham, Bill Loring, Bob Brainerd, Ned Stevenson, Jackie Blodgett, Emil Moshbacker, a race week guest from Larchmont, N. Y., and George O'Day one of the celebrities in sport pages stories of race week.

All hands will be on deck in Cohasset next week to watch yachtsmen from 16 clubs contend for the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup, one of the oldest trophies in yachting circles. Judging by the party plans there will be something doing every time the visiting sailors set foot on shore.

Sheila Pinkham

Joseph Leland is giving a movie party at the Cohasset Yacht Club to show the movies he made of last year's races. Festivities will begin Monday evening with a Dutch treat dinner arranged by Commodore Philip Benson of Cohasset Yacht Club and Mrs. Benson. Since Commodore Benson won the series in 1946 his club is defender of the trophy and the challengers are coming from as far away as the Royal Nassau Sailing Club. Also arranging the Dutch treat are Mrs. Richard W. Pratt, Kempton Churchill, Vice-Commodore and Mrs. Roger B. Coulter, Lucille Higginson and Mr. and Mrs. Guilbert Wales.

THE RUSTIC SQUASH house behind the Harold Hodgkinsons' white Colonial home in Marblehead was the scene of a festive supper party for Paul Muni after the North Shore Players' production of "Counsellor at Law" in which he is the star. Guests helped themselves at the buffet table and made their own sandwiches from the platters of home made bread, cheese, ham and cold meat. Mrs. Muni came with her actor husband and also Vivian Vance of the cast who told us, "I have a soft spot in my heart for Marblehead since Phil (Philip Ober, actor) and I were married here two summers ago."

AS DILIGENTLY as Hollywood talent scouts hunt for prospective stars, Mrs. Samuel Hallowell and Mrs. John P. Reynolds, prominent in AWVS, are scouting for volunteers to operate movie projectors, issue visitors' passes and serve as receptionists at Bedford Veterans' Hospital. Mrs. Philip Theopold of Dedham, Mrs. H. F. Barry, Mrs. William T. Darou, Jr., and Mrs. Vivian L. White of Stoneham are also active in the American Women's Voluntary Service.

MRS. HARRISON CULVER (Elizabeth Jenney) of St. Louis, who has a house at Wianno this summer, is one of the attractive younger colonists helping at the Farm and Garden Association sale tomorrow at Wianno Club. Elizabeth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Jenney of Brookline. Also waiting on shoppers will be Mrs. Sydney A. Beggs, Mrs. Donald David, Mrs. Pierce Pearmain, Mrs. B. Allen Rowland and many more.

Tip from the Smart Sex

White sidewall tires as illustrated will be ... extra cost as soon as available.

WHO is it that's first to spot — and quickest to go for — a really fresh new fashion idea when it comes along?

The ladies, of course!

And who is it that, according to careful surveys, put Buick far ahead of its price class and up among the lowest-priced three when they name the car of their innermost choice?

The fair sex — but naturally!

And who is it, when you come right down to it, that gets the most practical use from enough stirring Fireball power to handle the day's travel-jobs without strain and struggle?

Who relishes most the restful ease of wide, cushiony seats, and the blissful gentleness of all-coil springs that make rough roads well-mannered and good roads glass-smooth?

Who goes for a car big enough to be company-minded — yet light and easy enough in handling to park without a tussle, and flit shadow-light through market-hour traffic?

Who, good friends, has the family's smartest eye-for-a-buy — the shrewdest size-up of what's really good?

No one but the Lady of the Household!

So we toss out this thought to you menfolks:

Chances are that you've been hankering for the kind of thrill that lurks in this great-hearted, great-powered beauty.

You'd sort of like to get your hands on a car as big and mighty as this — if you thought the better half could be sold on it.

Take our tip — she's already sold. Favored as it is by red-blooded males, no Buick we've ever offered has won the smart sex quite like this one.

So why not pull a pleasant surprise some evening soon? Just come home and say, "Well, I placed an order for a Buick today. They're taking 'em with or without a car to trade."

Then watch her fall all over your neck!

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, Mutual Network, Mondays and Fridays

Q—The leaves of my tomatoes are curling. Is this caused by dry weather?

A—This condition may be caused by several factors. First, look on the under side of the leaves for aphids or plant lice. If plant lice are present, spray at least once a week with nicotine sulphate until they are cleared up. Another factor may be too heavy dusting. Light applications of dust once a week are better than one heavy dose.

Q—Can peas be planted now for a late crop?

A—Too late. In this area, the only crop of peas that do well are the early ones. Insects and hot weather make late planting unsuccessful.

Q—Is it necessary to use cabbage maggot discs on late cabbage?

A—It is not necessary to protect late cabbage. Maggot damage is never serious after June.

Q—Our beet tops are very red and seem to grow slowly.

A—Soil may be acid. Apply one pound of limestone or wood ashes to each 10 sq. ft. before planting next crop of beets.

Q—Will rotenone kill plant lice? We do not seem to get any control.

A—Rotenone is not too effective on this pest. Use nicotine sulphate or black leaf 40 at the rate of 1½ teaspoons to a gallon of water.

A memorial to the famous engineer, whose fatal accident in 1900 created a national legend and inspired a song that still lives, will be erected here tomorrow, replacing the wooden cross at his grave. The bronze memorial will carry a reproduction of Illinois Central Engine No. 382, which carried Casey to fame and death.

GERANIUM BOON

EAST HARTFORD, Ct., Aug. 6 (AP)—Japanese beetles love geraniums and geraniums kill Japanese beetles.

This bit of intelligence—no news to entomologists—came to light when Everett E. Warner found hundreds of dead beetles on geraniums which had not been sprayed.

Agricultural experiment station in Windsor said the beetles are so fond of geraniums that geranium juice frequently is used as bait in beetle traps.

Experts added that the beetles were chewing tobacco plants for the first time.

Jailed Archbishop Found in Good Health

BELGRADE, Aug. 6 (AP)—A group of eight American Protestant clergymen visited Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac in his cell at Lepoglava Prison near Zagreb yesterday and issued a signed statement declaring the former head of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia was in good health.

The statement said Stepinac, serving a 16-year term on a war crimes conviction, had apparently not been mistreated and was permitted to perform religious rites in prison.

Cop-Slaying Squatter Killed

LYNDHURST, N. J., Aug. 6 (INS)—A part-Indian squatter, Charlie Longboat, 57, who had promised to defend his shack to the death made good his threat when he killed a policeman and then was shot to death in an eviction battle.

He had settled in the shack three years ago with his foster mother, 100-year-old Mrs. Filomena Ditta.

Today, Patrolman Thomas Albino, 41, father of two children, knocked on the door of the shack, prepared to order Longboat and Mrs. Ditta to move out. Longboat's answer was a shotgun blast that killed Albino.

Police reinforcements were brought up swiftly, and a 35-minute battle ensued. Finally Longboat was brought down with three bullets in his body. Mrs. Ditta fled through a rear door during the battle. Police said a canvas bag she carried contained $1873.

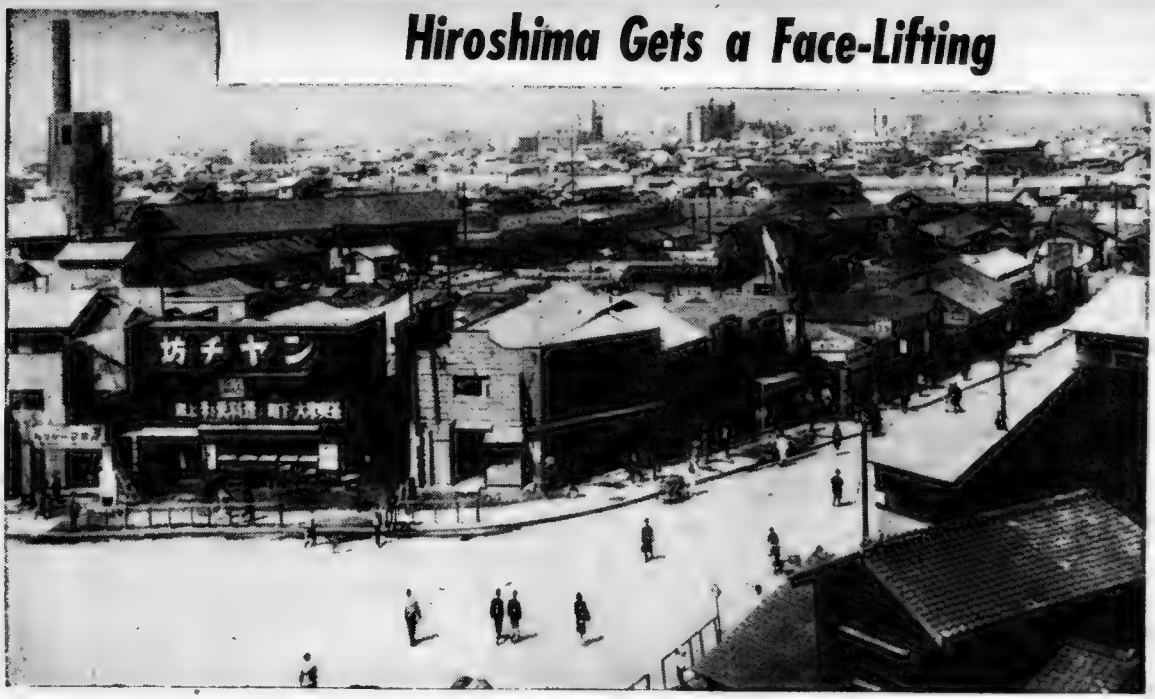
Hiroshima Gets a Face-Lifting



City Rebuilt—Two years after the atom bomb leveled Hiroshima to rubble, the Japanese people have partially built a new city, although much of the construction is of a temporary nature. Citizens have succeeded in rebuilding about 65 per cent of the wrecked buildings. Whole blocks were erased when the bomb exploded.

OUR MAJOR AIRPORT

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has finally earmarked $2,301,114 for New England airports, including $600,000 for Logan International Field at East Boston.

Of course, it is pleasing to everybody to see this important terminal receiving some consideration in Washington, even if the amount set aside for it is scarcely more than a token grant.

No other airport in the whole country is more strategically located or as capable of contributing so much of value to the nation's prosperity and safety—a fact that was repeatedly lost sight of during the war by military authorities who did not hesitate to squander billions elsewhere on aviation facilities which have long since ceased to serve useful purposes.

Profiting by this experience, Federal officials should readily understand the wisdom and propriety of building Logan Field up to its logical and destined greatness now, and not repeat the mistake of dispersing public funds so widely and thinly that little or no construction can be undertaken anywhere.

NO COMMENT

NEW HAMPSHIRE officials are strangely silent regarding the movement of a large part of the production of the famous Nashua Manufacturing Company to the South and the more or less certain discharge of some two thousand Nashua workers.

This hard-to-comprehend complacency is not shared by the soon-to-be ousted employes of the company, many of whom are too old to get other jobs, or by merchants and businessmen who know only too well that the imminent $3,000,000 reduction in the city's textile payroll will not fail to bring on a considerable amount of personally painful suffering.

For years, New Hampshire Governors and legislators have been warned that their stubborn refusal to develop the latent water power of their State in accordance with modern standards would some day force essential industries to migrate to the South and West in quest of the low-cost and abundant power not available to them in New Hampshire.

But the Granite State practice was to follow the propaganda of the power trust, with its economics of scarcity, and to show little or no interest in obviously necessary dams and reservoirs.

Even now, despite the fact that important industries are retrenching or suspending operations, the expensively-built dams at Blackwater River and Franklin Falls on the Merrimack are prohibited from yielding a single kilowatt of T. V. A.-rate electricity to protect the employment of thousands of New Hampshire people.

SOUND ADVICE

THE HABITUALLY cautious Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor has advised girls entering college this fall to prepare for both marriage and a career, a recommendation which practical parents have been giving their daughters for years.

The trouble with too many educational institutions—which, incidentally, are in as much need of good counsel as their students—is that they are so accustomed to million-dollar favors from sympathetic friends that they frequently forget that most of their graduates must eventually face the not-always-easy job of earning a living in an increasingly competitive world.

In New York City, the work-study programs, which permit young people to attend school part of the time and earn their living and acquire experience the rest of the time, have done much to overcome the inadequacies of the average college course, and the beneficiaries of this kind of realistic education usually advance more rapidly in their chosen careers than their less ambitious brothers and sisters.

It would be worth while to inaugurate similar work-study programs in all New England colleges and universities, and, if possible, in most high schools.

On the Side

By E. V. Durling

(Copy., 1947, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Come, Chloe, and give me sweet kisses,
For sweeter sure never girl gave,
But why in the midst of my blisses
Do you ask how many I'd have.
Go number the stars in the heaven,
Count how many sands on the shore,
When so many kisses you've given
I still shall be craving for more.
—CHARLES H. WILLIAMS

OF COURSE THERE'S nothing in a name. However, it is quite a coincidence that practically all women named Chloe are "oomph girl" types with heart-breaking tendencies. The first woman known to history named Chloe had eight husbands. Then take the heroine of that popular song "Chloe." She certainly had the hero of the ditty in quite a dither.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q. Who originated the "past performances" records for race horses and when? A. Frank Brunndell of Chicago in 1904. Q. What was the first film Mae West appeared in? A. I believe it was "Night After Night." She certainly turned in a sensational performance in that picture. Remember it? Q. What other famous feminine writers were born in St. Louis besides Fannie Hurst? A. Fannie Hurst was born in Hamilton, Ohio, but educated in St. Louis. Only celebrated literary lady who is a native of St. Louis I can think of off hand is Sally Benson, author of "Junior Miss." Q. Who starred in the play "Daddy's Gone A-Huntin'" and who wrote the poem inspiring the title? A. Marjorie Rambeau was the star of the play. The title was inspired by the following Mother Goose rhyme:

Bye, baby bunting,
Daddy's gone a-huntin',
To get a little rabbit skin
To wrap baby bunting in.

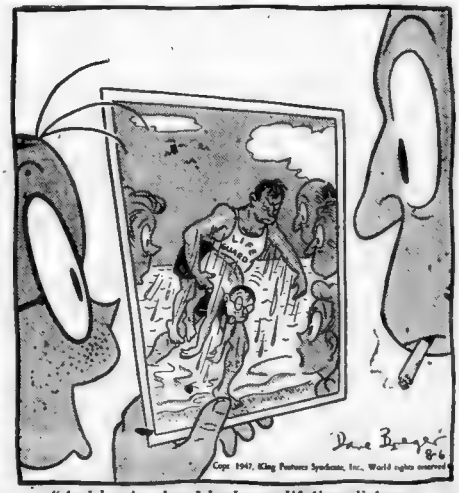
WHEN CHARLES ATLAS lived on the East Side of Manhattan, he was a weak, undersized kid. Then his folks moved to Brooklyn. The youngsters over the bridge were tough and pugnacious. They started pushing Charlie around. Young Atlas had a lot of pride. Always being on the losing end of a fight depressed him. So he started taking courses in physical culture and the manly art of self-defense. Soon he was able to hold his own in battles with the toughest kids in the neighborhood. Now he is referred to as "the world's most perfectly developed man" and has become a wealthy fellow selling physical culture courses to others. Charlie says the inspiration for the basic idea of his muscle and health building system of exercises was watching the tigers exercise in the Prospect Park zoo in Brooklyn.

HORSES & WOMEN: Men are more sentimental and romantic than women. That's what our Horses & Women Department have continually claimed. Women are very reluctant to admit this. However, there is at least one exception. After admitting women are more practical and less sentimental than men, Faith Baldwin concludes: "When a boy and girl fall in love, he's thinking about love. So is she, of course, but beyond his shoulder she also is looking to a new apartment and a baby carriage and deciding in a general way where to start looking for the dining room furniture."

RECORDS: Some shouting is being done about an animal named Cover Up, at Hollywood Park, tying Whiskbroom II's two-minute flat record for the mile and a quarter made at Belmont Park. This brings up a question worthy of discussion. How can you rightly say one animal "tied" another's record unless both carried equal weights? Cover Up carried 116 pounds. Whiskbroom II carried 139 pounds!

PASSING BY: Bernarr McFadden. Physical culture expert. Though now 79 years of age, he is in such good shape he recently passed a physical examination for the renewal of his flying license . . . Mike McDermott. The well-dressed race track superintendent. He is president of the Yonkers, N. Y., Association of Bathtub Singers. Among the ditties Mr. McDermott enthusiastically warbles beneath his morning shower are: "Let Mr. McGuire Sit Down," "Are You There, Moriarty?" "We Don't Give Bread With One Fishbell" and "The Charming Young Widow I Met On The Train."

AS IT WAS: So, you think night club prices are too high at present? You're right. But if you did any stepping around and about Manhattan in the prohibition era you know compared to the prices of that time the current charges are low. In the 1920's one New York night spot charged $5 for a chicken sandwich! And $3 for a cheese sandwich. The cover charge at this place was $4 per person. The charge for a nip of ginger ale was $1.25. That was Texas Guinan's Three Hundred Club.



"And here's when I broke my lifetime distance swimmin' record!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A VERY WISE MAN who has seen the march of events for more years than most of us recently complained that there was too much politics in the air. This generation is obsessed by politics. In some countries, such as Italy and France, politics absorbs the energies of the people.

George E. Sokolsky

Art has flown into hiding; music has become a shrill cacophony; even production in industry has given way before the endless talk about government. As for morals, ethics, philosophy, they have disappeared altogether before the belligerent shout of the politician and the propagandist lies of those who have seized power.

Even in our own country, politics holds the front page of newspapers and the staccato of the commentators. Unusual as it seems, the Broadway columnists, children of fashion, who used to be amusing with their tales of wickedness and their emphasis upon the grotesque, have gone political and vie with each other in political prophecy.

Even the vaudevillians, who are hired to amuse the public on the radio, punctuate their repetitive humor with political gags and slanted comment on the events of the day.

If this trend continues, we shall have umpires at baseball games shouting, "Veto!" instead of "Strike!"

THE REASON for this concentration on a single subject is obvious. It is that everywhere government has expanded and increased its power; that government has invaded the home, the church, the school, the college and university, the mill and factory, the farm.

No man is free from government. Banks are owned and controlled by government. In many countries the food of the people is distributed on minimum rations by government officials who decide for themselves, not only what one is to eat, but who is to eat.

Even here in the United States high food prices are due to government buying for foreign accounts. UNRRA not only fed millions with American food, which became a gift from government to government, but their governments sold the food to their own people, and in some instances only to those who were politically on the right side.

When more than 35 cents of every earned dollar is taken from the individual by his government, the man who is deprived of the possibility of saving becomes politically conscious. He wonders why his government needs so much. When he discovers, as so many farmers did, that after the government has deprived him of his own earned money, it hands him a subsidy, he wonders what corruption is in the air.

When he sees that his government refuses to reduce his tax by one penny, but lays plans to spend $20,000,000,000 over a four-year period in Europe and Asia, and that a vast propaganda machine has been let loose upon him to confuse and deceive him into believing that the only way to save his economy is to throw good money after bad, he grows suspicious and becomes political. He wants to know what's cooking.

THAT IS WHY we are so preoccupied with the mere business of government. And it is interesting that during the past decade nothing noteworthy has appeared in art, in music, in poetry, in the novel, in philosophy.

It is all journalistic. It is all of the moment. It is like the frightening noise I listened to at the Berkshire festival when Copland vied with Stravinsky in the use of the instruments of music to produce the maximum of noise that the human ear can tolerate.

But worse even than that is the absence of standards, of the urbanities of living, of the cultivation of truth, of the resistance to the lie. Politics has driven decency out of our lives as bad money drives out good money. Picayune men, such as never before led a people, emerge as celebrities on ghost-written speeches and publicity-agented fame.

It is such an era, and therefore politics absorbs the human mind and interest. Millions of women each year attend political lectures in thousands of clubs and forums who could, if they only would, devote themselves to the improvement of the mind and character of the next generation.

It is a way of life—but not a good way of life.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6—Ricky Soma, the Mona Lisa faced Ballerina who came here to test for "Miracle of the Bells" didn't get the job. But she pirouetted herself into a contract with David Selznick, and that, my friends, is a lucky break for the girl.

I was very interested to hear that David is more interested in her as an actress than a dancer. In fact, the 18-year-old beauty will give up her ballet work and go immediately into a long period of dramatic coaching.

First she goes to La Jolla Playhouse for summer stock appearances, after which she will make a series of screen tests.

By the way, her full name is Enrica and she is the daughter of Anthony Soma, who runs the well known New York restaurant, Tony's.

JOHNNY FARROW, who had his difficulties with Paramount, has settled them, I'm glad to say, because Johnny and Paramount are good for each other and he's made some top pictures with Henry Ginsberg.

Joan Caulfield

He, like all talented young men, every once in a while gets a little difficult—or maybe he feels his bosses get difficult.

Anyhow, all is now sweetness and light and when Alan Ladd and Joan Caulfield take off for West Point, Johnny will go along, in charge of "The Long Grey Line," the original story by William Wister Haines. This will be the fourth teaming picture of star Ladd and director Farrow.

MGM IS NOW negotiating with Armand Deutsch for the purchase of "This Side of Innocence," Taylor Caldwell's marvelous story. Deutsch, who spent a great deal of money getting it ready, and then abandoned the idea of filming it himself, wants $100,000 plus profits. It's the profits that stand in the way, since MGM never makes deals of that kind.

However, it looks as if Deutsch may accept a flat sum and forget the profit idea. It's a story that every company tried to buy, for it was high on the best seller list.

CLARK GABLE told me Sunday that he had seen "Cass Timberlane" and he thought it one of the best pictures he had ever seen. He says Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner are wonderful.

There's talk that Lana may go into "Home Coming" with Clark, but that, of course, is not settled, because she's had two in a row, "Green Dolphin Street" and "Cass," yet to be shown.

We talked about "Boom Town," which he and I had both seen recently and which he made with Spence. He said he'd like to make another picture with Spence. Well, Tracy told me he'd like to make a picture with Gable. How about it, MGM? These two were always awfully good together.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The Doris Day-Jack Carson romance is more serious than outsiders know. Jack hasn't been really that devoted to any girl since he parted from his wife, Kay Germaine—and Doris returns his feeling.

Jack went around the Warner lot saying that in "Romance in High C," in which they were together, for the first time in his life he didn't mind having someone steal the picture from him.

I don't think Jack need worry that anyone can steal it from him. He's so good that he and Jack Warner are talking a 15-year deal.

Irving Rapper was so afraid Alexis Smith would think it was something personal, his not wanting her for "Christopher Blake," that he wrote her a charming letter. In it he explained that he felt she was not matronly enough to play the boy's mother.

This gave Frank Capra the chance to put in a bid to Warners to borrow tall, slender Miss Smith for the "other woman" role in "State of the Union"—and being paged by Capra should soothe any lady's wounded feelings.

But I have a hunch that the offer will go begging. Warners has practically made up its mind to keep her in "Christopher Blake" with Peter Godfrey directing.

When Townsend Netcher arrived in town last week he was accompanied by Harriet Taylor, the very rich oil widow.

Mrs. Taylor has gone in...to the hospital for a minor operation, and the plan now, I hear, is for T., who belongs to the department store Netchers of Chicago, to marry the beautiful Harriet in Honolulu this fall.

When I first mentioned the marriage, Mrs. Taylor denied it, but I don't believe she will deny it now. They are madly in love.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Danny Selznick, the younger son of Irene and David Selznick, was operated on today. He came through the operation nicely and we all know Danny will soon be himself, he's such a fine little boy. L. B. Mayer, the child's grandfather, was with Danny all through the operation.

The inside on the Carl Brisson Ciro's cafe fracas is that he refused to sing if they insisted on serving during his numbers. Ciro's insisted, so he'll call it a two weeks' vacation and visit his grandson, Rosalind Russell's little boy.

Mary Lee Fairbanks, wife of Doug, Jr., has been in the hospital. She's expecting a baby in a few months, and it was thought best to have her under observation.

The Darryl Zanucks aren't going to Europe. Reason is, Darryl has brought in "Gentleman's Agreement" two weeks under schedule and he's so wrapped up he wants to stay here for the cutting and exploitation program.

Seldom have I heard a producer rave about a rival company's picture the way Sam Goldwyn does over "Cynthia." He says the MGM movie is the best of its kind he has ever seen. "Without all this nonsense about our young people."

Betty Kern

Betty Kern, wife of the popular publisher, "Hap" Kern, of our Boston paper, long distanced from Cape Cod that Lucille Ball was their week-end house guest. Lucille's play, "Dream Girl," is playing Boston.

Olivia De Havilland and Marcus Goodrich celebrate their first wedding anniversary Aug. 26, and, believe me, it will be a celebration. They have finally found a house after living in an apartment rented from Paulette Goddard for a year.

Jane Winton, well known in the movies before her marriage to Michael Gottlieb, is in town visiting. She hasn't been here in years, and looks well enough to go right back on the screen.

Gen. John Pershing's nephew, De Vaughn Pershing, age nine, has been booked by Ken Murray for "Blackouts." The remarkable child plays everything from Bach to boogie-woogie.

Pev Marley will be in New York when Linda Darnell arrives next week.

Everyone who heard Kay Thompson in her song preview is doing a rave. She'll wow them with the sophisticated "Poor Suzette" when she opens in Las Vegas.

'Tis said that Sanford Adler, who bought The Flamingo in Las Vegas, made his chips in the real estate business originally. Adler had owned 5000 lots in Detroit and when the boom came along his white elephants became gold nuggets.

Boston After Dark

THIS CURRENT BOSTON engagement of Perry Como's (which ends today) will be remembered for the formation of "Perry Como's Boston All-Girl Glee Club"... When the great Como checked into town, neither he nor any of his entourage had any idea that such an informal organization was due to come into being... The Glee Club was one of those impromptu things, born of the Como popularity and the determination of some of Perry's 14-16-year-old group of female admirers to sit through as many shows as possible, and to join—when they knew the words—in the chorus.

THE GLEE CLUB bursts into song now at nearly every show, but it is at its best and loudest and most uninhibited in the afternoon. . . . To the amusement of the thousands of patrons sitting in the rear of the orchestra and in the balcony, the young choristers accompany Perry throughout his repertoire . . . They seem to know that "Chi-Baba" is Singer Como's favorite, and they sing that one with real gusto. . . . The Boston All-Girl Glee Club originated the first day of the Como engagement at the supper show.

PERRY HAD BEEN OBSERVING that the audience which had occupied the front ten or twelve rows held some faces which, by now, were familiar to him... "When did you girls come in?" Como asked his down-front audience... "This morning!" was the reply, in chorus... Perry shrugged, made a polite crack about hoping that the girls were enjoying themselves, and went into his song... To his surprise, the youngsters had interpreted his remarks as the formation of an entente cordiale between the star and them... Perry having been friendly enough to speak to them, the kids decided to help him out with his songs... But the bond of friendship between Perry and part of his audience is by now an old one... Questions from the singer got prompt and truthful answers... "How long have you girls been here?" Mr. Como demanded of his audience on his second-last day at the Keith Boston... "Since Thursday!" came the response, and in volume... Horse attaches say the kids are telling the truth... Some of the young Como fans actually have attended the performance every day, and many of them have stayed in their seats from noon until hunger.

"YOU CAN'T SLIGHT them," said Perry, in a discussion of these young bobby-soxers over campaign of [illegible] attitudes... They [illegible] if you do... I have started something. The kids go [illegible]... I asked some of them why they scream and yell when listening to a singer... Do you get a kick out of it?... Perry said that the answer was a loud "No!" Well why do you scream and yell, and stir up a commotion?" the young new millionaire queried... "It's the thing to do! It's because we want to!" were the two stock answers.

THESE BOBBY-SOXERS obviously are authentic copies of their elder sisters the crop of females who screeched and swooned and made Sinatra a national by-word... Their reasons for "screaming and yelling" are reported accurately, but your reporter does not intend to pursue the subject far enough to inquire why "it's the thing to do?" or why "because we want to?"... Or why they wear their men's shirts, tie, etc.

AS THE COMO and Marion Hutton show leaves town, it will possibly take with it an attendance record for the 48 shows it has played in a week... Another record is coming in with "The Long Night," a strong picture which has a thrill in nearly every foot of film... When "The Long Night" bowed in today, the Keith Boston was one of a record-breaking number of 347 movie theaters which will be showing the picture before ten days have elapsed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Ray Schindler, the famed private detective is conferring with Nancy de Marigny—seeking settlement of the $50,000 fee he charged for helping to clear her former husband in the Oakes murder case... Flash! Toots Shor took his first dancing lesson yesterday, at the Fred Astaire studio... There'll be an authentic "Miss America" in the line at the Arrowhead Inn in Saratoga this season. She's Pat Donelly, who won the crown in Atlantic City a few seasons ago... Cafe Socialite Joan LaRoche's divorce from Dick Sinclair is final. Romance experts predict she'll waltz down the aisle with Irwin Kramer, the hotel heir... One of the country's top comics gives his mother $1000 a week to play cards with. Nancy de Marigny

Someone has slipped me a bit of information that clinches Irving Berlin's contention about no business like show business. It's a small item about Judy Garland's sister, Jimmy Garland. Just a few years ago the lesser known Miss Garland decided to resume her temporarily dormant singing career, and naturally there was a wealth of box office appeal in the Garland name, which was Jimmy's as much as it was Judy's inasmuch as it had been given to both of them by Georgie Jessel years ago when they were singing in a movie house stage show under the rather unappetizing title of the Gumm Sisters. But when Jimmy decided to open at a local cafe she refused to use the Garland name, and instead invested a sizable sum for the services of a publicity man who for some unaccountable reason christened her "Miss Dorothy."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Puzzle confronting a guy who has just returned to Washington after two days in Bermuda:

Is Sen. Brewster investigating Howard Hughes or is Howard Hughes investigating Sen. Brewster?

SONG HIT of the early 1930's, slightly re-phrased: "I Found a Hundred Dollar Baby in a $40,000,000 Brawl."

EVERY GUY who has ever had to sweat over an expense account, wondering if the boss will stand a $3 tap for a 50-cent suit press, is eaten with envy over Johnny Meyer.

Never, apparently, has Howard Hughes' peripatetic purse-bearer had to worry whether the auditor would put a red ring around a 75-cent item for cab fare with a notation that trolley cars were still running.

I have always contended that some of the finest, most imaginative writing in the newspaper business goes into the compilation of expense accounts. But no reporter, in his wildest flights of fiscal fancy, could vie with the moon-faced Mr. Meyer.

All Johnny had to do was think of it, and sign his name. It could be for jewels, or perfume, or airplanes, or ladies. Contrast this with an expense account episode I personally witnessed in Boston.

I was visiting a newspaper office there when the city editor let out a scream and a young reporter sidled up, looking like a prisoner being arraigned at the bar of justice.

It seems the cub had been assigned to cover a human interest story about a cat that walked backwards, and he had put in 10 cents for catnip. The city editor stormed that he had not authorized any such reckless extravagance—and refused to pay.

Johnny Meyer undoubtedly could have gotten away with a bill for fresh caviar for a troupe of elephants.

In the old days when I was traveling with the Giants ball club there wasn't much chance to swindle because the club always lifted the check and billed our office at the end of the month. About the only way to steal a few pennies was to cab fare.

We used to charge a buck to and from the ball park. This was about the honest fare but we salvaged a little by packing ten of us, all carrying portables, into one hack. It was a bit crowded—but our share, with tip, only came to about 15 cents, a net swindle of 85 cents.

I had been engaged in this petty regulation for some time—in fact, it was hallowed by tradition—when one summer day the editorial auditor called me in.

"I have just returned from my vacation," he began conversationally, "I spent my holiday in Pittsburgh."

I was well aware that editorial auditors could not be classified as human beings so I refrained from any comment upon a man spending his vacation in Pittsburgh. I just murmured that I hoped he had had a nice time.

"Very," he said, "By the way I stayed at the Schenley Hotel. That's where the last club stops too, isn't it?"

I said it was, and started to ask him how he had liked the paintings in the tap room, when he cut me short.

"I see when you always charge a dollar from the Schenley to the ball park," he said, very nastily. "Do you have any idea of the approx acts distance?"

I shrugged and said I had never measured it.

"Well, I have," snapped the auditor. "I took a tape measure and measured it. From the front door of the Schenley to the press gate at the ball park is exactly 102 feet."

YOU COULDN'T SEE Howard Hughes acting that way with Johnny. Mr. Hughes wouldn't spend his vacation in Pittsburgh with a tape measure. I bet Johnny could have gotten away with a bill for a special train if he'd been minded to, and had the company of Interior Sec. Krug for excuse.

We could have had Ibn-Saud, robes, turban and all, with us, and our auditor wouldn't even have stood for a wheel barrow.

"BRUTE FORCE," latest Mark Hellinger production for Universal-International, teams Ann Blyth and Burt Lancaster. It is due tomorrow on the RKO Boston screen.

'FANTASIA' IN 3D WEEK

"Fantasia," Walt Disney's most ambitious motion picture and triple Academy Award winner, continues for a third week at the Kenmore Theater.

'Ah, Wilderness' Next On Wellesley Campus

The Wellesley Summer Theater has signed Broadway's Charity Grace to appear next week with Bert Lytell in Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!"

Others to be seen in this nostalgic comedy are Josephine Osgood and David Ellison, both of Wellesley. "Ah, Wilderness!" will be presented Tuesday through Saturday night in Alumnae Hall on the Wellesley College campus.

Blackstone Due at Colonial

That famous Abe Lincoln quotation about "fooling the people all the time" certainly does not apply to Harry Blackstone, celebrated exponent of white magic, because he has been fooling . . . and entertaining . . . audiences for the past 33 years. The humorous angle to the situation is that the public love it.

This is recognized by the fact that many of his fans will attend two and three performances in a row, ever in the hope that in some way the 60-year-old practitioner of necromancy will slip up some way and reveal his tricks.

Blackstone whose gigantic stage show consists of 30 people and a huge amount of scenery and props, comes to the Colonial Theater for a two-week engagement commencing Monday, Aug. 25.

Already his followers are sending in mail orders to the Colonial box office for seats in desirable locations.

UPTOWN SCREEN BILL

"The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," co-starring Gene Tierney and Rex Harrison, moves to the Uptown screen tomorrow. The other feature will be "The Woman on the Beach," with Joan Bennett, Robert Ryan and Charles Bickford.

Rejuvenates the Skin

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

"I WANT TO BE beautiful. How should I go about it?" writes a Newton woman . . . in language as simple and direct as that.

ONE OF THE cinema capitol's most beautiful and sultriest brunettes is M-G-M actress Ava Gardner. It is an honest sort of beauty . . . alive and real . . . not a photographic trickery. And it is youthful . . . the kind that will always be ageless, we think. For us at-home gals anxious to cling to a similar facial look . . . there is a second-youth cream to help us out.

Is she kidding? We're no magician . . . nor do we wave a magic wand to make of beauty for our readers an over-night acquisition. Beauty is contingent upon so many, many things . . . that it is up to a woman to take personal inventory and discover wherein she fails . . . or what she lacks.

We can be her shadow and direct her attention to good-looking clothes . . . attractive hairdos from healthy, radiant hair . . . warn her about figure finesse . . . guide her on the proper care of the skin so that it will be nicely receptive to flattering makeup . . . but her beauty is what she makes of herself.

For she alone must appraise the mirrored reflection . . . before others get a chance to accept or reject . . . and if what she sees is pleasing to the eye . . . then she has won her kind of beauty . . . beauty akin to her personality and sphere of activity.

But if beauty doesn't come naturally . . . then the natural thing to do is to challenge nature and avail yourself of the cosmetic achievements in, at least, bringing the youthful look to the complexion. For in youth there is beauty.

TRIAL PACKAGE FOR FORTNIGHT'S USE

On the whole these facial rejuvenating creams are expensive . . . although one doesn't compromise with beauty . . . when the results justify the means. But a smart cosmetic company had the bright idea of packaging its estrogenic cream, with its well-proven claim of recaptured facial finesse, in a trial size . . . a jar that's good for about a fortnight's use. Its one-ounce of proportionately distributed International Units of the cosmetic counterpart of age and nature's filching from the skin tissues is, therefore, budget-priced to enable women to give it a try.

Although most women like to act their age . . . they don't want to look it. We'd like to recapture second youth for ourselves when we're approaching that age when life is supposed to begin and be beautiful . . . but usually never does or is. Maybe if we did give our complexion a second youth overhauling . . . we'd be happier. It's a good thought, anyway!

This cream, aptly named second-youth cream, because it helps to replenish and re-establish the resiliency and buoyant softness and smoothness of our girlhood complexion . . . is a scientific skin conditioner and should be applied every night. Only a thin film is necessary to penetrate the outer layers of the skin. In a few weeks . . . when you notice a skin change for the better . . . you'll continue to subscribe to its efficient wonders.

For the name of this trial-size estrogenic cream for a livelier, younger complexion, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except week-end, or write to me, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MANIPULATED fabric fullness to give the skirt its needed width . . . and boxed shirring to pattern the bodice . . . make this "hunting pink" crepe dress from Jo Copeland's collection for Pottullo Modes a fall and winter stunner. Surprisingly simple . . . it manifests the new fashion trends in its longer, full skirt, higher neckline and natural-shoulder-lined sleeves. —R. M.

Some Tips For Buffet

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

SUMMER ENTERTAINING can be fun for the hostess and her guests if the meals are served buffet style. Buffet affairs have an informal "help yourself" air which invites the guests to gather round pie tables, high and wanderers can find chairs in the garden, on the porch.

One of the most appetizing dishes for a buffet style dinner is smoked tongue. Serve it sliced around a heaping mound of potato salad on one of your favorite platters, and you'll have a buffet beauty. For an extra note of prettiness, decorate the salad mound with slices of hard-cooked egg. Round out the buffet menu with a hand-some salad tray of peaches stuffed with cream cheese, toasted almonds and maraschino cherries.

Serve crusty butter rolls for the bread of the menu and plan on fluffy lemon chiffon pie or sundaes for dessert. Keep lots of steaming coffee in the pot ready for quick service.

TO COOK SMOKED TONGUE

Select a smoked beef tongue, weighing between 3 to 4 pounds. Wash tongue with warm water. Cover with cold water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer until tender, allowing one hour per pound. Keep tongue in liquid until cool enough to handle, then remove. Trim roots and remove skin. Serve in thin slices. Tongue serves 4 to a pound.

If you're the proud possessor of a pressure cooker, use it to save time cooking the tongue. Prepare tongue for cooking as above, place in the saucepan and add 2 cups of water. Fasten the lid tightly and bring pressure to 15 lbs. Hold at this pressure for 20 minutes to the pound. Cool pan at once and remove lid. Allow tongue to cool, then proceed as usual.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Here are some other meat dish suggestions for buffet menus which can be prepared in the morning and put in the refrigerator until serving time: First, there's ham, king of buffet menus. Serve it sliced, ground in loaves, or diced in casseroles. Other good buffet meats include meat loaf, meat balls with spaghetti, curried lamb with chutney, chop suey, sliced corned beef, jellied meat loaf and cold cuts. If you're serving any large pieces of meat, do the carving in the kitchen.

BUFFET MENUS

Meat Loaf
Scalloped Potatoes with Mushrooms
Fresh Garden Vegetable
Tossed Green Salad with Olive and Blue Cheese Dressing
Rolls with Butter
Peach Cream Pie
Iced Tea

Platter of Sliced Ham
Pineapple Mint Sauce
Corn and Green Pepper Casserole
Cucumber and Cottage Cheese Ring
Hard Rolls
Cocoanut Cake with Fresh Sliced Peaches and Cream
Coffee

BUFFET TIPS

1—Select cold foods that can be prepared several hours ahead of time.

2—Select hot foods, except large meat cuts, that can be served in casserole dishes.

3—Arrange the foods on the buffet table for ease in serving as well as to make the most attractive arrangement.

4—Place the serving tools beside each food dish.

5—For ease in picking up, have all silverware and napkins at the end of the line of service.

6—If you have no serving trays, arrange to have card tables for comfort in eating. No man likes to balance a plate of food on his knee.

This Girl Is Simply Lacking in Courage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MOST OF THE PEOPLE who write to this column about their problems are so mixed up they honestly don't know what to do.

The majority are trying to decide which of the possible courses open to them will make them happiest. In the minority—but it's heartening that there are any—are those who are sincerely looking for the right way out, even though that right way many mean unhappiness for them.

Then there's another group, and in this one fall those who at heart want to do the right thing, but who lack the courage to take the hard way, and so desperately reach out for someone who may possibly be able to think up a reason, however slight and feeble, why they needn't do it.

In this latter group is a girl who signs her letter "Rebecca," and whose story is one that became all too familiar during the war years. She was 18 when she met and fell in love with an Air Force lieutenant, and, like many another girl, "didn't find out until too late that he was married, and by that time nothing mattered really, except the next time I was to see him.

"A year of this, and I began to feel ashamed," she goes on to confess. "His wife would come to the field after him, and although he told me they disliked each other, they always seemed pleasant enough to each other. He convinced me that his wife did not understand him and that he was trying to get a divorce so he could marry me."

Came the end of the war, and the lieutenant, then a captain, was a civilian again. "We kept on loving each other, but the divorce never came through, and I began to feel ashamed again. Somehow it doesn't seem fair to his wife, It never did, only I didn't care so blinded was I with loving."

And now here comes the immediate problem.

Re-enlisted, the man in the case is in Germany, from where she receives "beautiful letters" and, recently, lovely gifts on the sixth anniversary "of the night we met." She has a chance to be transferred, in her job, to Frankfurt, only a hundred miles from where he is stationed. Shall she go? "He's still married, and I understand his wife is going to Germany, too," she says . . . "I know he loves me more than he does his wife, because he swore it, and besides, it was I who went with him to New York prior to his sailing, not her. Is that good proof?"

No, Rebecca, I'm sorry, but that's not good proof of anything except that your hero is an expert two-timer. And maybe not so expert, at that, since he had nothing more original to woo you with than the old "my wife - doesn't - understand - me" routine and the typical phony promise of the divorce that never materialized.

You've admitted that you've felt ashamed of this affair. What I thing you've also felt, but don't admit, is that this man never meant to give up his wife and marry you. Way down deep in your heart, I believe you've doubted him almost ever since the moment you discovered he was married and hadn't told you.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

ARE YOU TACTLESS? Don't make tactless comments about old pictures, group photographs, etc. The girl who says, "Who is this dumb-looking one?" is flustered by the answer, "That's how I looked when I graduated!" Even such a "harmless" question as "Is this your aunt?" is embarrassing when the "aunt" turns out to be your 20-year-old hostess herself!

Standby of Smart Women

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

THE BEAUTIFULLY wearable gabardine suit, classic standby of the smart woman's Winter wardrobe, wears a new look this year. Without taking a bit from its functionalism, the designers have softened the severity of the tailored gabardine suit and given it new importance.

Color is largely responsible for the softer look. The sober browns, blacks and greens of the traditional gabardine suit have been augmented by pastels and jewel tones that emphasize the silkiness of the fabric.

A modified version of the new silhouette shows up in the gabardine suit this year, to soften its severity. The change is subtle. Sleeves may be slightly fuller. Collars are apt to be more feminine with rippled revers or rounded lapels. Jackets are longer, shaped into the waist with darts and rounded over the hips.

German Letter Solves 2-Year War Mystery

Austen Lake

By AUSTEN LAKE

TODAY'S MAIL BRINGS A LETTER which solves a 27-month mystery. It bears the stamp of postwar Germany and the legend, Reinhardt Koenig, "Englischen spache." It is date lined "Burgstadt, Sachsen, July 10, Goethestrasse 6" and opens, "To Mr. Austin Lake! Kind sir! Having received some clippings from a friend in Lawrence, Mass., and have read you were satisfied with me when you were in Burgstadt, Germany, in last days of war, and that you never hear from me till now.

"I could not write because I did not know where you were, but from clippings I know you are reporter for the Boston American newspaper. I am glad you were satisfied with me. But now, in our situation we cannot have what a man likes. I have had much trouble. I am taken liberty to ask if you would send me some smokings . . . Many greetings from Reinhardt and Louise Koenig."

I HAVE OFTEN WONDERED what happened to the jockey-sized German who helped us capture the top political boss of Burgstadt. It was April 14, 1945, and the Fourth Armored Division had spearheaded close to Czechoslovakia. A captain named "Fig" Newton (of Lt.-Col. Harold Cohen's armored infantry staff) and I were monkeying around the freshly captured town of Burgstadt in search of a rumored Nazi gold cache, which we never found. So we were talking with a French libre who said the local Nazi headman was hiding somewhere close by—an especially nasty "cochon" named Tronja who had sicked the Gestapo on people at his whim and thereby got very rich.

We were chewing the fat in my pigeon French when a man little larger than a midget up and said in clear English, "Can I be of help?" He said he was Reinhardt Koenig and had formerly lived at 3 Montgomery st., Lawrence, where he married an American girl named Louise Tensh, sister to Ernest Tensh, a Lawrence feed dealer. Louise, a grave and latter aged woman, was there, too and said worrisomely "I hope Reinhardt isn't getting himself in trouble"—which he was all right!

The little man whose skin looked like a tight drum head said his father had died just before the war, so he came home to collect a legacy in Reichsmarks intending to return to his Lawrence home. But the Nazis had beaten him to the money and wouldn't let him leave because he was native born. So he stayed, making a meager living teaching English, and Louise stayed with him.

"Do you know where the Nazi Kreisleiter lives?" I asked him and he replied, "Yes, I know and will be glad to show you." It would make him very happy, he said, because Tronja had thrown him in jail for a year, a very dirty jail with nothing much to eat. "Which is why," said Reinhardt, "I am so thin and have ulcers."

So Reinhardt climbed into our jeep and Capt. Newton and I started out. The little guy was a bit fuzzy about locations at first, but finally he pointed a claw and said "Here! This is where Tronja lives." So "Fig" and I drew our guns—mine a captured German Lug-r which was contrary to military law and would have expelled me from the war zone if the Army press section knew about it. We walked into the court yard of a lavish dwelling and rapped on the door. Reinhardt came along, too.

After some delay the door opened a crack and an unshaven frightened man peered out. "That's him," said Reinhardt. "Tronja?" demanded Capt. Newton. "Ich bin Tronja," said the frightened Kreisleiter who obviously expected a bullet in his fat belly and was quaking with fear. He looked anything but the arrogant body-master with life and death mastery over some hundreds of people. He was humble, meek and just plain scared.

SO WE WENT INSIDE amid a luxuriously furnished mansion where, in his living room he had a half-filled haversack of clothing and essentials for escape. There was also a Walthour pistol, which I still have, and two packages of Chesterfield cigarets which obviously came from a U. S. Red Cross parcel intended for our American PW's in the nearby prison stalag. In fact only that morning Col Cohen had discovered that some 20,000 such Red Cross parcels had been distributed the previous day by the Nazis to local civilians and had issued a characteristic order, "If by noon today any article from an American Red Cross package is found in German civilian hands, the penalty will be severe." And "severe" was the proper word! Cohen wouldn't have hesitated to burn down that person's house. For with an advanced spearhead like ours the law was what our commanders made it, and the law was tough!

Through Koenig, Tronja said sheepishly a townsman had given him the cigarets, he didn't know where they came from. But they were Red Cross "smokings" all right! So we bundled Herr Tronja in the jeep and rolled to the 4th Armored's PW stockade where a tough MP sergeant, who used to box professionally in Minneapolis, was in charge. We had unloaded the Nazi boss an said, "This guy's a prize. He's the top Nazi poltician who gave people a very bad time." And the sergeant had smacked a fist into his palm and gurgled satisfaction, saying "Doze'r da guys we loves to ketch." Then I showed him the two packages of Chesterfields and said, "These are some of our own stuff he had on him."

An with that the Sarge's eyes lit up with a red glow and he caught the ex-Kreisleiter a roundhouse sock that would have felled a slaughter house steer. And I remember the slow grin of pleasure that had crossed Reinhardt's parchment features as he said, "That is good."

Whether Tronja survived to make the trip rearward I don't know. But a few days later Louise Koenig had come to report that Reinhardt was missing. He had disappeared, possibly a victim of Nazi underground. And up to the time the 4th went away, he was still missing. So it comes with much pleasure to hear from him personally and know that somehow he got through, though he does not say how.

Sain Has Chance to Break His 1946 20-Game Mark

By BILL GRIMES

Johnny Sain racked up his 15th victory of the season last night when he turned back the Dodgers, 4-2, by virtue of a very timely two-bagger by Hank Camelli, the pride of Milford. A year ago, Big John was a 20-game winner. He also led the National League pitchers in the RBI department with 17 and he wound up the campaign with a batting average of .298. And, he topped both leagues in sacrifice hits—10.

Johnny Sain got off to a slow start this spring. For weeks he suffered from a sinus ailment but didn't complain. In fact it wasn't until the club was returning home from the first swing through the West that anyone knew that the ace right hander was under the weather.

The victory over the National League leaders last night was Sain's fifth straight win his longest winning streak of the year. Previously he had shut out Pittsburgh 2 to 0, beaten Chicago 12 to 4, St. Louis 10 to 3 and Cincinnati 4 to 2.

Since he has rounded into his 1946 form, Sain has been the Braves most reliable stopper. He has been the one hurler that has been capable of going in there and putting an end to a losing streak.

The fans probably are more interested in the fact that Sain has contributed 13 victories to the Braves cause than they are in his offensive contributions. But, among the National League players who have appeared in 25 or more games, John is the leading batter, with an average of .379.

He has been at bat 66 times and has made 25 hits and has driven in 15 runs.

Johnny was a better hitter than he was a pitcher when he played for Nashville in the Southern Association. At the end of the 1941 season, Larry Gilbert, the Nashville manager, advised Sain to go to the outfield. He informed Big John that in his opinion he would never make the grade even as a minor league hurler.

But during the winter of 1941-42, Gilbert recommended Sain to Bob Quinn as a pitcher. And, Johnny went to Sanford, Fla. the next spring.

Casey Stengel was the Braves manager that year. "Ole Case" was very favorably impressed with Sain during spring training. And, when the regular season started, Stengel used Big John as a relief pitcher. Sain was terrific in relief work. He saved seven games for Lou Tost, an overrated southpaw. Then, he was given an opportunity to start a few games. But, because he didn't know how to pace himself, Johnny wasn't as successful in his new role.

After the 1942 season, Sain enlisted in the Navy Air Corps and was in the service for three years. He played some ball during the war but refused to accept a baseball assignment.

Just what happened to Sain during the three years he was in the service has never been explained. But when he reported to Mgr. Bill Southworth, Sain had poise, knew how to keep something in reserve and acted like a seasoned veteran instead of starting his sophomore year in the big league.

It was Johnny's 20 games that made it possible for the Braves to finish in fourth place a year ago. If he had had any hitting behind him, Sain would have won 25 to 30 games. As a general rule, any time that he allowed his opponents three runs, Sain was a dead duck.

His club did not have enough punch to wipe out three run deficits, when he was on the mound.

And, if the Braves wind up in the first division this year, Johnny will be the biggest contributor among the pitchers. He has about five weeks to surpass his 1946 mark. And, if he receives the assistance from his teammates, he will break that record.

Sain's big bat figured prominently in last nights' win. He singled sharply to center in the second frame to drive home the first run and he scored the second and tieing run marker in the 4th, which he opened with a safe hit and came around on a sacrifice and a Johnny Hopp single.

Johnny is very quiet both on and off the field. And, he's one of the most serious ball players in the game. And, moreover, he's a manager's pitcher, for he's always willing to do his bit for the Braves' cause.

Free Swim Lessons at Two Locations

Only two more days remain for the free swimming lessons which are now being given at Carson Beach, South Boston, and at Sampson's Pond, South Carver.

The swim lessons, free to swimmers of all ages, are conducted by the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser, the Red Cross, the Humane Society and the Mass. Youth Committee.

Johnnie Temple, Humane Society, will wind up his program at South Carver on Friday. Joe Baldwin, Red Cross, will follow the same schedule at Carson Beach.

The swim tutors hold life saving classes from 10-12 in the morning and beginners' classes from 2-4 in the afternoon.

Locations next week are: August 11 to August 23 at Sunset Pond, Braintree, and at Lake Massapaug, Sharon.

Warren Spahn Seeking No. 14 As He Opposes Joe Hatten

Warren Spahn will make his fifth bid to chalk No. 14 tonight. He tried to get over the 13 mark against Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati but without success.

Manager Burt Shotten will send Joe Hatten, another southpaw, against the Tribe this evening.

The Braves' 4-to 2 victory last night cost the Dodgers a full game to the Cardinals, who did another job on the Cubs.

Hank Camelli, who until recently sat out most of the contests, broke up last night's contest with a timely two-run double to left center in the sixth. He tagged the ball well and drove it between Arkie Vaughan and "Pistol Pete" Reiser, scoring Earl Torgeson and Nanny Fernandez.

In the opening inning umpire George Barr motioned that Johnny Hopp was out but when Ed Stanky's throw got away from Jackie Robinson, "Hipity" Hopp was declared safe.

During the late innings, Eddie Stanky and Jackie Robinson stood at the plate with the left foot well out of the batters' box. The illegal stance gave the two Dodgers a far better opportunity to connect with John Sain's curve ball.

The attendance was 29,987 and boosted the home attendance figures to 835,848.

The Braves and Dodgers will wind up this series tomorrow with a daylight game. The Tribe goes to New York tomorrow evening and will be in Gotham for ten days playing the Giants and Dodgers.

Eddie Miller

Tribe Must Find Crack Shortstop To Rise Next Year

By JACK CONWAY

THE BRAVES ARE SEEKING A SHORTSTOP as they look ahead to 1948 . . . Dick Culler, Sibbi Sisti and Nanny Fernandez have had opportunities at short but, not one of them has sparkled . . . It is no secret that the Braves management feels that if the club is to do better in 1948 than this year it will require the services of a first class shortstop.

The Braves have lacked top strenght at short since they traded Eddie Miller to the Reds . . . Miller has had one of his best seasons . . . In addition to fielding his position brilliantly, Miller has starred at th ebat . . . He was picked by the fans over Marty Marion of the Cardinals to play short on the National League All-Star team, but was obliged to pass up the game when injured.

Miller's salary with the Braves once reached $15,000 . . . After signing for this amount, Miller had a poor season, and was tendered a contract by Bob Quinn which he refused to sign . . . This writer visited Miller at his Lake Worth, Fla., home while he was a holdout . . . Eddie told me he was anxious to play for the Braves, and that he would accept a reasonable salary adjustment . . . He finally signed for $12,500.

Few ball clubs go places unless they possess a worthwhile shortstop . . . This is why Messrs Perini, Maney and Rugo would like to get a star at this position for Billy Southworth . . . When the Braves last won the pennant in 1914, they had the colorful Rabbit Maranville at shortstop . . . The late Johnny Evers played second, and he taught Maranville the fine points of infield play . . . Maranville and Miller were the greatest shortstops to represent the Braves.

Johnny Pesky has played a creditable game for the Red Sox at shortstop, but he does not rate with Everett Scott who starred for Bill Carrigan's clubs and later aided the Yankees to win pennants . . . Scott was not as good a hitter as Pesky, but he was a better fielder.

The Braves are also seeking an outfielder and a pitcher . . . Southworth has brought the Tribe, with ordinary material in most departments, a long way, but he will not be satisfied until his team wins a pennant.

Sullivan and Priest to battle Sept. 5

TOMMY SULLIVAN, SOUTH BOSTON'S Thumping Light heavyweight, will receive an opportunity to even scores with Al (Red) Priest of Cambridge when they clash in a ten-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden on Sept. 5. . . . When these local ring rivals met last December, Priest won a close decision before a capacity crowd that dropped $56,000 into the box office. . . . The return bout will not be as good an attraction as the original tussle, but it is believed it will draw $30,000. . . . Priest will engage in a tuneup match at Waterbury, Ct., tomorrow night when he meets Art Tatta . . . It is not expected Priest will experience too much trouble winning from Tatta.

The Goodwin A. C. and Callahan A. C. have a close working agreement, and they will each stage ten shows in the Garden. . . . With few good local ring cards, the rival ring clubs decided they would have to end feuding if they were to survive.

Louis Shopping for 1948 Title Opponent

JOE LOUIS IS FRANK in stating that his non-title bouts will give him a chance to shop for his 1948 championship opponent. . . . The Brown Bomber has confirmed this writer's exclusive story of several weeks ago that he hopes to retire as an undefeated heavyweight champion in 1948. . . . Joe will be 34 years of age and the boxing game will have lost its old thrill. . . . Louis ' plan for non-title bouts before his final farewell ring match has been generally condemnned by boxing fans in all parts of the country.

For years the champion took on all comers and always left the ring a winner. . . . His proposed two non-title bouts have failed to arouse any great enthusiasm and they have taken from Louis some of his standing with the public. . . . It would be better for Joe's prestige if he put his championship on the line when he meets Jersey Joe Wolcott in the New York Garden on Nov. 14 rather than refusing to risk his $1,000,000 crown. . . . Louis' second non-title bout will take place next March, and his title defense contest is expected to take place next June.

Movie Money in Foxboro Trotting Track

Movie monennai

THERE WILL BE $600,000 in moving picture money in Paul Bowser's night trotting track at Foxboro. . . . It is expected that the new track will cost $1,000,000 and it is planned to have it ready to open on Labor Day. . . . The Racing Commission has received full information on the Foxboro track, and has taken the request for dates under advisement. . . . The Commission has been informed that Johnny Francis of Jamaica Plain will be in charge of the mutuel plant . . . Francis holds a similar post at Raynham Park.

Local Stars In Hearst Play Leave

Harry Agganis, Lynn Classical ace, Walter Kocur, Peabody two-way star, and other outstanding baseball players in New England will leave tomorrow morning for New York where they will compete in the National Hearst sandlot championships. The National game is tabbed for the Polo Grounds on August 13.

Agganis, 18, and Kocur, 17, were named by Claude Davidson, president of the N. E. League, and Bill Barrett, Red Sox scout, following the Hearst New England final at Fenway Park last week. The Fenway game followed a two month search throughout the principal localities in New England

Linehan Club Makes It Two

Linehan Club made it two straight over the '46 champion Vets Administration, and West Roxbury came out on top of Hyde Square V. F. W. again last night, to feature the second night of the opening series of the Park League playoffs.

Four thousand fans went home limp from Dorchester Town Field, from the 10-9 thriller in which Artesani Club evened the series at 1-1 with Dick Casey Club. Tom Kidik saved the Allston entry's bacon with a great catch in the crowd, of a Bob Johnson line drive that would have tied the ball game up.

The brothers Marmo led a 13-hit Gould Oil batting barrage on the Boston Giants at American Legion Park, with Joe contributing two triples, a single and six RBI, and Tony a triple and single, to the winning cause, sending down the feared South Enders 15-11.

RESULTS LAST NIGHT

West Roxbury 6, Hyde Square V.F.W. 5; Linehan Club 8, Vets Administration 0; Artesani Club 10, Dick Casey Club 9; Gould Oil 15, Boston Giants 11.

Red Sox Lack Alertness And Spirit as They Lose

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—If Joe Dobson can shake off the infected tooth trouble that has been plaguing him he will face the Washington Senators in the second night game in a row tonight. These Sox pitchers can come with more complaints than a truant officer.

But the big blonde really is suffering from tooth trouble and is anxious to get in there and help the team. The prospects of a Boston win is none too good with Don Haeffner due to chuck for the Solons. Don has been twirling smart ball in his recent starts which his 6-3 record attests.

The Red Sox plunged to new depths when Dave Ferriss, above all pitchers, failed them in a matter of control. When the big Southerner has lost complete direction of the plate as he did last night, it's a sure sign that the Red Sox have hit the toboggan.

Ferriss, together with Tex Hughson and possibly Joe Dobson, were the stop guys for Joe Cronin. They were the twirlers expected to put an instant stop to losing streaks. But it appears as if the three were doing pretty well to help along that wrong cause.

Ferriss doubtless was wild last night, walking seven men and hitting two batters. But even at that had his mates played major league baseball behind him instead of the feeble efforts they offered Big Dave may have fared a lot better. Ferriss was licked 3-1 but more alert fielding and a better hustling spirit among his mates might have given him a chance even against the masterful pitching of Walt Masterson.

Masterson allowed the Sox seven hits. Sam Mele and Johnny Pesky grabbed two each while one each went to Birdie Tebbetts, Sam Dente and Dave Ferriss. The crack right hander was at his best.

The possibility of another defeat at the hands of the Senators tonight is not making the Red Sox plight any happier. Then after tonight's game they have a singleton tomorrow afternoon before they return home for a Friday night game with the New York Yankees.

The lives of champions certainly is rough when the boys get out of step as they are doing from day to day.

Mize Threatens Ruth's Home Run Record of 60

It is still anybody's race in the National League and as long as big Johnny Mize keeps clouting those long ones, the homer hitting New York Giants are not to be sold short, according to the Associated Press.

The Big Cat, as Mize is called by his teammates, not only is keeping the Giants very much in the pennant fight, but is seriously threatening what is probably the greatest batting feat in baseball—Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in the 1927 season.

The hard-hitting first baseman walloped two into the Polo Grounds stands last night to lead the Giants to a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The victory, coupled with the Braves' 4-2 win over Brooklyn in Boston, reduced the league-leading Dodgers' margin over the third-place Giants to seven games.

The runner-up St. Louis Cards now trail the Dodgers by six games following their 8-2 triumph over the Cubs in a daylight game in Chicago. The Braves, in fourth place, are 10 games off the pace.

Mize's pair of round trippers, his 33rd and 34th of the season came inthe Giants' 96th game and put him two games ahead of Ruth's record setting pace. The Babe did not hit his 34th until the New York Yankees had entered their 98th game. Big John has 58 games in which to hit 26 homers he needs for a tie.

The Georgia larruper, except for the late Lou Gehrig, is the only lefthanded hitter to seriously threaten Ruth's homer record. Lou's best was 49 in 1934 and '30. Only four other southpaw swingers have been able to pass the 40 mark. Cy Williams of the 1923 Phillies reached 41. Chuck Klein of the 1929 Phils hammered 43 out of old Baker Bowl, to top the Giants' Mel Ott, another lefthander homer hitter of note, by one Mize, himself, banged 43 in 1940.

The only left-handed slugger in the American League, outside of Ruth and Gehrig, to pass 40 homers was Hal Trosky, who hit 42 for the Cleveland Indians in 1936.

Three right-handed hitters came close to Ruth's mark. Hank Greenberg, with Detroit and Jimmy Foxx, with the Philadelphia Athletics, once reached 58. Hack Wilson, the National League record holder, hit 56 circuit clouts.

Mize, a noted August and September hitter, has a full-time job on his hands as the Babe slammed 17 homers in September, the final month of his record season. The record for one month is 18. Ruth, however, had a comparatively small output for August, hitting only nine.

Ruth, himself, is watching Mize's effort to surpass his record with a great deal of interest. Asked the other day whether he thought anybody ever would better his feat, the former Sultan of Swat remarked:

"Mize is the only fellow around who might do it. If anyone does, I hope it is he. This way, the record would still be in the family. Johnny, you know, is my wife's cousin."

Mize singled in a run in the first inning against losing pitcher Blix Donnelly and scored when centerfielder Harry Walker allowed his single to hop through his legs. He belted his first homer off Donnelly in the sixth to break a 2-2 tie and reached Schoolboy for a second four-master in the eighth. It was Mize's third circuit clout off the Schoolboy.

Willard Marshall followed Mize's first homer with one of his own, his 28th, to give the Giants 151 four baggers for the season, only 20 short of the National League club mark of 171 owned by the Chicago Cubs and 31 behind the Yankees major league record of 182.

Duck Sport Has Been Curtailed

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

As was expected, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has cut the duck hunting season, while the daily bag limit has been reduced by four. Bay State gunners may enjoy their sport for thirty days, Nov. 18 to Dec. 17, losing 15 days as of last year. In view of the depleted bird population, we don't think there should be any grumbles from sportsmen.

Since scoter ducks are still prevalent, the season on these feathered targets will commence Sept. 16, running through the regular duck shooting period. However, until Nov. 17, scoters may be shot only in open ocean areas beyond the outer harbor lines.

For rails and gallinules, the season is set at Nov. 18 to Dec. 17. Woodcock may be stalked during the time between Nov. 3 and Nov. 17.

In the other New England states, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut will have 30 straight days, with Maine and New Hompshire receiving split seasons of two 12-day periods. Dates for the latter two are Oct. 7-18; and Dec. 2-13, thus permitting nimrods in various sections to get in on different flights of ducks.

Other regulations state that hunters may shoot waterfowl from sunrise until one hour before sunset, except on opening day, when firing may start at noon . . . Hours for woodcock are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Bag limits on American or red-breasted mergansers have been slashed to 25 per day in the aggregate, with no possession limit . . . And don't forget that a signed federal duck stamp is necessary for everyone over 16 years old, plus a state license . . . Just how good—or bad—the hunting will be this fall, still remains problematical . . . At any rate, more shells are available now.

ANGLING ANGLES: At a recent meeting, Ralph Carpenter, 2d, fisheries and game director of New Hampshire, and George Davis, Vermont director, conferred at the York Pond, N. H., Federal Hatchery, in Milan, concerning the ensuing fish rearing program at that station. Each year, these two states receive equal shares of the trout raised there—an output of better than 100,000 legal fish. At the end of the conference, it was decided to take steps whereby the annual production at York Pond could be appreciably increased, each state paying its share of the cost.

Reports of large stripers continue from Provincetown, where surf casters have been hooking bass off Race Point . . . Squeteague and bluefish have been spotted at Nantucket.

300 Horses Entered at Middleboro

John H. Gilbody today announced that he will have at least 300 horses at the Middleboro Fair which opens a six day meeting next Monday afternoon.

Gilbody stated that Bill Daley who has been identified with racing for a number of years, has been appointed racing secretary with George Clements of the Suffolk Downs forces as his assistant.

The stewards will be Elmer Nelson, former chairman of the Massachusetts Racing Assn.; George Holland of Boston and Joe Cunningham of Hyde Park.

Dave Heisman has been placed in charge of the mutuels and he will serve in that capacity at all of the fairs.

It will be the first time that running horses have competed at Middleboro. In order to have everything in good shape, a large number of workmen are already on the grounds getting the track and plant ready for the opening.

India Natives File Entries For Doubles

CHESTNUT HILL, Aug. 6—Sumant C. Misra and J. H. Mehta of India's Davis Cup team have filed entry for the U. S. National Doubles championship to be held at the Longwood Cricket Club Aug. 18 through Aug. 23.

Misra, the son of Sir Lakshmi P. Misra, made an impressive American debut last week at the Eastern grass court championship at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, New Jersey.

Title Swim Tops Winchester Meet

The only national swimming championship of the New England season will be staged on Saturday afternoon at a Record-American-Sunday Advertiser meet at the Leonard Field Pool, Winchester. The event, the National AAU junior women's 100 meter free-style championship, will attract the foremost swimmers on the East Coast.

Another Record-American-Sunday Advertiser swim meet is scheduled for the Scituate Harbor Yacht Club pool in Scituate on Sunday afternoon.

Two NEAAU championships will add a spark of fire to the 10-event Scituate YC meet. They are the NEAAU senior 100-meter free-style championship for women and the NEAAU 220-yard senior free-style for men. These two championship events will attract swim speedsters from every section of New England. Already there are close to 50 entries for the Scituate meet.

Some of the early entries for the Scituate Harbor Yacht Club competition are: Bob Muir and Bill Pender, Brookline S. C.; Clara Lamore and Janet Moreau, Olneyville; Bob Caffray, Andover; Coralie O'Connor, Worcester; Maxine Campbell, Ruth Mix, Bob Blanchard and Jack Forbes, Metropolitan S. C.; Carl Antonevich, Bill Sonner, George Rivard, Tom Rennick, Pawtucket; Pauline Silven, Nancy Bradley, Connie Mills, Carol Sousa, Joy Barrows, Gene Latham, Bob Arwezon and Dean Pouraares, Providence Central.

Roy Watmough will bring 10 swimmers from the Wanskuck S. C. in Providence. Scituate swim instructor Jim Doherty states that he will have 15 of his local swimmers readied for the competitions.

HOW THE STARS DID

By the Associated Press

ENOS SLAUGHTER, Cardinals—Singled in five times at bat, scored once and drove in another run.

TED WILLIAMS, Red Sox—Drew two walks and failed to hit safely in his two other times at bat.

WALKER COOPER, Giants—Flied out, grounded into a double play, popped out and was safe on an error to snap his 15-game hitting streak.

LOU BOUDREAU, Indians—Smacked a pair of doubles in four times at bat to take the league batting leadership away from George Kell of Detroit.

JACKIE ROBINSON, Dodgers—Flied out, grounded out, lined out to leave runners on first and third and popped to third baseman.

JOE DIMAGGIO, Yankees—Did not play.

Rodney Favored to Win Hambletonian Classic

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—It was the Dixie Flier—big and fast Rodney—against a dozen other three-year-old trotters in the Hambletonian today as the city slickers came a-rushing up the roads to Goshen for their annual exposure to hot new corn, the cider jug and fresh air.

This corn-tassel derby is the date the slickers keep with their country cousins every year, and this time they were out to make it the gaudiest get-together of them all.

Long before noon, the incoming thousands had sleepy, quiet Goshen bulging and overflowing into the picturesque Orange County countryside.

And before the starter gave them the "let 'em come, now," at 2:45 p. m. (EDT) for the first one mile heat of the 22d running of the Hayseed Hustle, Bill Cane expected there'd be a new all-time Hambletonian high of 20,000 improvers-of-the mutuel machines on hand.

To get ready for the record rush, Smilin' Bill had squeezed 2000 new seats under the green-and-white awnings of the stands fronting the strip that is shaped like an old three-cornered iron dinner bell.

As usual, the gee-gee who got home first in two heats was going to step up to the paying teller's window to collect the $24,979.86 winner's paycheck from the $46,267.93 total purse.

And wherever you went around here today, one and all agreed that whoever was going to do it would have to beat the Carolina giant, Rodney.

The huge son of Spencer Scott—Spencer won it in 1940—was picked up as a yearling for $46,000 by R. Horace Johnston, the Charlotte (N. C.), trotting horseman, and already has won over $30,000. He clicked in 15 of his 20 heats last year and hasn't lost a decision yet this season, although he was carried to four heats in the National Stake at Saratoga last month.

He was definitely the glamor boy to haul veteran driver Bi Shivley to a second Hambletonian victory for owner Johnston, who hit the jackpot first back in 1941 with Bill Gallon.

The knock-down-the-favorite club, holding its regular pre-race meeting, stabbed at four others of the 12 who will tangle with Rodney. Heading this quarter was the one-two punch from the Castleton farm of Mrs. James B. Johnson of Lexington, Ky.—Hoot Mon, who whipped Rodney in the Lexington trots last year—and Volotone, who took one of the heats of the National Stake from Rodney last month.

Against Rodney's $4600 bargain-counter price tag, Hoot Mon cost his owner a fancy $50,000 and is the highest priced horse ever to take a crack at the trotters' gold rush. Both of the Castleton steppers will be piloted by former Hambleton winners. Sep Palin, who steered the mighty Greyhound in 1945, will try with Hoot Mon, and Fred Egan, who did it in 1940, will crack the whip over Volotone. Greyhound, incidentally, will give his farewell trotting exhibition between the Hambletonian heats.

The other pair of leading threats are Way Yonder, a home-bred from the Gainesway Farm of Clarence Gaines in the Kentucky blue grass, who whipped Hoot Mon and Volotone last year and who'll be driven today by Tom Berry, two-time Hambletonian winner, and Buckshot B., from the barn of Martin Burke of Troy, N. Y.

Two other former winning drivers will be in there pitching again this time, Ben White, a four-time winner who'll steer Deanna Hanover, and Harry Pownall, who came home in 1945 and will try with American Ballad.

The rabbit figures to be too big, too, for any of the others to pull out of the hat. There was the usual "tip-horse" though—a surprise entry.

Marshfield Set For Banner Year

Celebrating its eightieth anniversary, the Marshfield Fair will this year offer many new features and a vastly expanded program, most attractive to patrons will be the installation of tarred drives designed to eliminate dust and giving the grounds a new and improved appearance.

Six days of pari mutuel racing are again to highlight the Marshfield Fair and James Picarillo will again be the Racing Secretary. A new and improved, and much widened chute has been built from which to start the horses better and give better vision to the public. General Manager Charles Langille announces that arrangements have been made for many more horses than in past years and for an improved breed.

Drinking fountains have been installed at convenient spots on the grounds and new and improved rest rooms have been built. Shrubbery and shade trees have been set out over a great part of the grounds.

The fair will open on Sunday, August 17, with the largest dog show in history of this section. Pari-mutuel racing opens on Monday. Last year the Marshfield Fair went over the half million mark in pari-mutuels for the first time and this figure is expected to be topped this season.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT
And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers
Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.
Often, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when the lower part gets blocked food may fail to digest properly.
What you want for real relief is something to "unblock" your lowest intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.
Get Carter's Pills right now. Take as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits all 5 of Nature's own digestive juices to mix better with your food. You get genuine relief from indigestion so you can feel really good again.
Buy Carter's Pills today. "Unblock" your intestinal tract for real relief from indigestion.
